'McGivern Killed Deputy', Claims Prosecution Witness

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON

With himself and Deputy Sheriff William Fitzgerald being held around their necks by Charles Culhane and Robert Bowerman, Gerald McGivern fired the shot or shots that mortally wounded Fitzgerald, former Westchester County Deputy Sheriff Joseph Singer testified Monday in Ulster County Court.

Singer, who survived the Sept. 13, 1968 Thruway shootout in which Bowerman also died, was the first witness called by the prosecution in the third murder trial of Culhane and McGivern.

Under questioning by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, Singer, 65 and now retired, said he had pulled over to the side of the thruway near milepost 67 (near Plattekill), when Culhane put his handcuffs over his (Singer's) neck and Bowerman did the same to Fitzgerald.

"I could feel my gun leave my holster and I couldn't do anything about it," Singer explained.

Singer also testified that Fitzgerald pulled his gun out and he and McGivern pointed the weapons at each other. "Fitzgerald told him to drop the gun. McGivern said, 'Take the cuffs off,' " and then "two or three shots" were fired, Singer said.

In the ensuing struggle for weapons, Singer shot Bowerman and fired a round at Culhane, the former deputy told the court. When the firing ended, McGivern and Culhane, both wounded, lay outside the car and Fitzgerald lay sprawled across the front seat, with Bowerman in the back seat, Singer said.

Singer's testimony under questioning by Vogt, who is prosecuting the case with First Assistant DA Michael Kavanagh, lasted about one hour Monday. Then the defense took over the cross examination of the prosecution's key witness.

Karen Peters, who is representing McGivern, began the cross examination for the defense, with questions mainly aimed at bringing out inconsistencies in Singer's statements to investigators following the shootout, at the preliminary hearing and grand jury investigation in 1968, and during the first and second trials in 1970 and 1971. The first trial was ordered in 1973 due to technical irregularities in jury selection.

Court was recessed until today following about an hour of cross examination of Singer on Monday. Ms. Peters and Henry Rothblatt, representing Culhane, continued cross examination of Singer today.

Cher Costume Controversy

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Station WCPO-TV's decision to take singer Cher Bono off the air because of her eye-popping see-through costumes has many persons applauding the station's courage "to stand up for the decent." But others are complaining about censorship.

WCPO General Manager Bob Gordon, whose station is the local CBS affiliate, says he tried unsuccessfully to get permission to show "Cher" at a later time than 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

"I object to the total emphasis the lady seems to have on her way of dressing," Gordon said. "My thinking is the costume has a Las Vegas nightclub look to it. It seems to be a little too 'nightclubby' for that early time period."

But when the network said it was either 7:30 or not at all, Gordon banned Cher. A local independent station is now carrying "Cher," but the mail to WCPO keeps rolling in.

"God Bless Robert Gordon for taking off that naked woman, Cher, who is sinful in the sight of God. Mr. Gordon is a God-fearing man and now I hope he'll get those naked women off those 7-Up commercials," wrote one viewer.

Other samples from Monday's letter bag:
"I, for one, do not care to have Mr. Gordon telling me what to watch. Leave it to Mr. Gordon to be the only self-proclaimed censor of 'Cher' in the country."

"Put my three cheers in for canceling the naked 'Cher' show which was to have gone at 7:30 p.m. Thank God today for a few who still are not afraid to stand up for the decent."

The Cincinnati Enquirer backed Gordon in an editorial, saying, "to its credit, WCPO opted to keep faith with the community."

Civilian Airport Is Bombed

Right Wing Revolts In Lisbon

LISBON (UPI) — War planes and helicopters bombed a military headquarters at Lisbon's civilian airport today in what appeared to be a rightwing military rebellion against the leftist government. Premier Vasco Dos Santos Goncalves said later the situation was under control.

"We inform the population that this morning there were incidents involving reactionary military forces in an attempt to stop the revolutionary process," the leftist Goncalves said in a broadcast statement to the nation.

"The situation is under control. We appeal to the population to remain calm without however reducing their vigilance."

Goncalves launched his appeal as Air Force planes, which had earlier bombed an artillery barracks near Lisbon airport, were still flying over the capital. The barracks was occupied by the 1st Light Artillery Regiment which has been reported sympathizing with the extreme left.

Smoke and flames billowed from airport buildings and the barracks after the attacks by T6 Harvard trainers, F86 Sabrejets and Alouette 3S helicopters. Ambulances with screaming sirens raced from the airport to hospitals, but there was no official word on casualties.

Right-wing paratroopers were reported involved in the airport attack, and the Armed Forces Movement said marine reinforcements had been rushed to the army headquarters in Lisbon to break up a siege by unidentified ground troops there.

Goncalves said the "incidents consisted of an attempt to occupy the anti-aircraft regiment's headquarters involving land and air forces."

The government-controlled radio called the attack a "rebellion against the democrati-ic order." It asked the population to take to the streets to show their support for the leftist Armed Forces Movement which has been running Portugal since it overthrew rightist President Antonio de Spinoza last September.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the planes appeared to be under the command of officers considered political moderates. An explosive split between moderates and left-wingers had developed in the armed forces in the past weeks.

In the city of Lisbon, groups of youth collected at some points, but no immediate incidents were reported.

Nothing was known about the situation in the country. Telephone communications were cut to the town of Santarem, whose garrison is commanded by de Spinoza sympathizers.

(In neighboring Spain, the news agency Europa Press said Spanish Air Force maneuvers scheduled for today have been postponed. The agency said the reasons for the suspension were not known.)

Political observers in Portugal have warned repeatedly of the possibility of civil war between right- and left-wing factions, and a group of moderate officers met last week with leftist President Francisco da Costa Gomes and agreed not to take any action against radical units for fear of sparking such a war.

But today jet and propeller-driven planes believed commanded by rightist paratroopers attacked the airport. Jet fighter-bombers swooped low over the center of the city and a government spokesman announced over the National Radio that the public must make the rebels pay heavily for their crimes.

"They rebelled against the democratic order which they did not accept but the Ruling Armed Forces Movement is vigilant and so should be the civilian population," the spokesman said.

The broadcast called on the public to take to the streets to show their support for the movement — as did the Communists on Sept. 28, 1974, when Gen. Antonio de Spinoza was ousted by the leftists.

Lisbon's international airport was closed.

End of Five Month Voyage

Surrounded by a flotilla of pleasure craft, the Golden Hinde II, which arrived in San Francisco to end a five-month voyage from Plymouth, England, makes a ceremonial reentry into San Francisco Bay beneath the Golden Gate Bridge.

The ship is a replica of the 16th Century galleon in which Sir Francis Drake circumnavigated the world in 1577-1580. She will be berthed near Fisherman's Wharf as a nautical museum. (UPI)

Heavy Viet Fighting Continues

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces today launched a nationwide offensive, pushing back government troops with tank and infantry assaults from Saigon to northernmost Quang Tri province, the military command said.

Fresh North Vietnamese forces were hurled into street fighting at Ban Me Thuot provincial capital, where nine Americans including a 5-year-old girl remained safe but pinned down, spokesmen said.

"As we see it, this is the beginning of a nationwide offensive by the Communists," said Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, spokesman for the military command.

The Saigon command announced the loss of three district capitals—the equivalent of U.S. county seats—and reported street fighting in a besieged fourth.

Communist troops Monday overran Duc Lap, 135 miles north of Saigon, and adjacent Tien Phuoc and Hieu Duc, 345 miles north of the capital, Hien reported.

Tank-backed Communist infantry early today attacked Dau Tieng district capital, 35 miles northwest of Saigon, and street fighting continued throughout the day, the spokesmen said.

Government defenders blew up a key bridge about one mile northeast of Dau Tieng, preventing the North Vietnamese tanks from getting inside the town, Hien said.

At Ban Me Thuot, "Government officers had to call in airstrikes right on the streets of the city," Hien said.

Meanwhile, in Cambodia, heavy rebel rocket attacks on Pochentong Airport today forced the U.S. food and fuel airlift into the war-torn Cambodian capital to shut down two hours early.

The American cargo jets managed to fly 12 missions into Pochentong before the airlift was suspended for the rest of the day at 3 p.m. The day's flying normally ends at sundown.

An American spokesman in Saigon said "flights were suspended at 3 p.m. because the rockets were getting too close."

He said none of the DC8 jets was damaged by the rebel fire. The planes flew in 519 tons of rice and 46 tons of kerosene from Saigon.

Man Perishes in County Fire

QUARRYVILLE

An elderly man died today in the thick, choking smoke of a fire at his small house on the High Falls Road near Quarryville. Meanwhile, High Falls volunteers battled a blaze in the Town of Rosendale and an investigation of a fire Monday near Big Indian is continuing.

The dead man was identified by Saugerties Town Police as Morgan H. Curtis; he was said to be in his late 60s. The Saxton Fire Company was called to the fire scene at about 7 a.m. today, with aid at the scene from the Centerville and Cedar Grove companies. Saugerties Ambulance was on standby at the scene; they took Curtis' body to the county morgue.

Kevin Drescher, first assistant chief of the Saxton company, said, Curtis' residence was "heavily involved with smoke, and some fire" when his company arrived at the scene.

He described the house as a one-story two-room bungalow. Curtis was found slumped on the bed, Drescher said, as though he had sat up on the edge of the bed and then fallen over.

Coroner Richard M. Buono pronounced Curtis dead at the scene. An official cause of death awaits Buono's inquest.

Drescher said the bungalow received "considerable" water, and some heat damage, with the cause of the fire as yet undetermined.

Town police said the fire appeared to have started in the front room of the house, which served as a bedroom. Curtis reportedly lived alone in the house.

About 30 firemen were at the scene, with four pieces of equipment. No firemen were injured in the blaze.

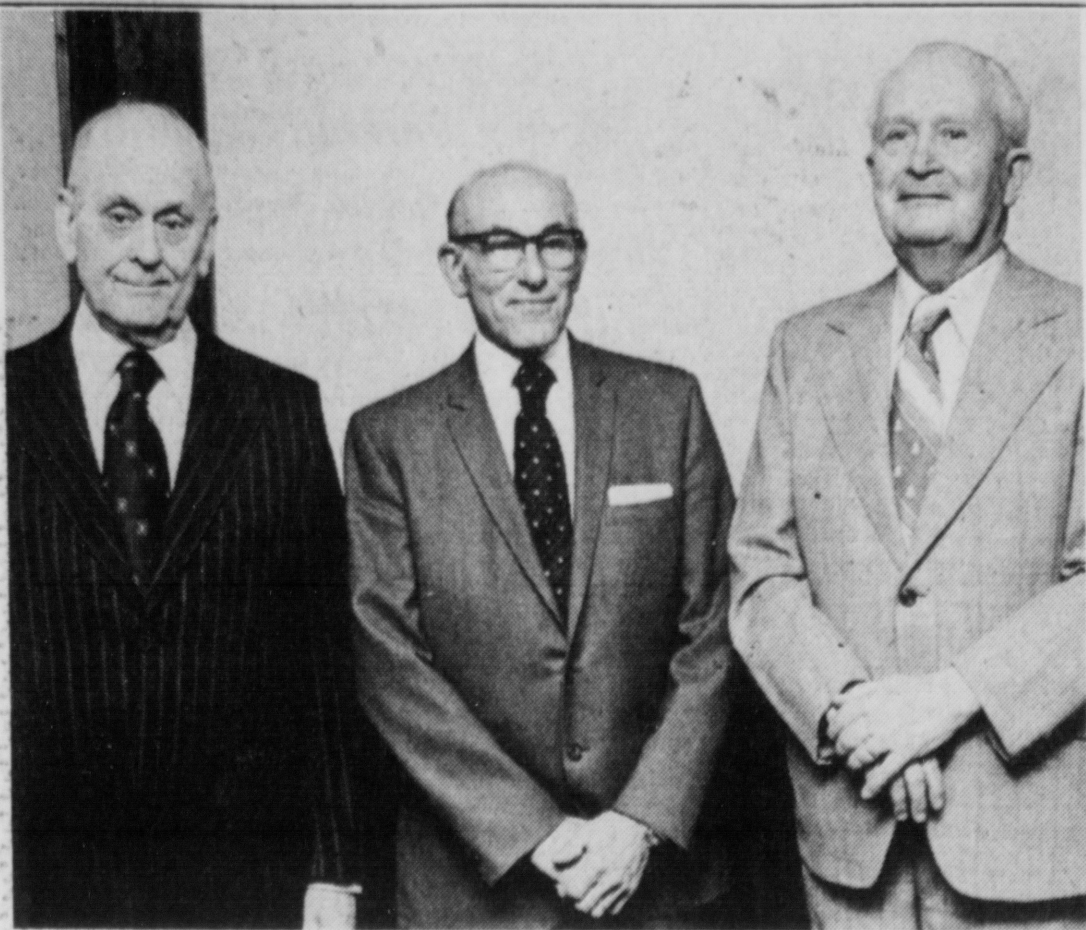

Town police, sheriff's deputies, and state police were all at the fire scene. Town police said the building was "still intact."

The High Falls firemen responded to a call about 6 a.m. today. The fire was at the old Abe Dunn estate off Route 213, near High Falls in the Town of Rosendale. Mutual aid was received from the fire companies of Rosendale and Cortekill.

It took about 100 volunteer firemen from several companies under Big Indian Fire Chief Alfred Eignor to quell a blaze in an annex of the Budapest Hotel Monday morning, and the cause of the fire is now under investigation by police agencies.

The Town of Shandaken Constables have called in State Police BCI in the investigation, which is continuing.

Things were reported back to normal at the Zena School, where a fire occurred in a classroom Friday. Principal Donald VanDeusen said Zena area firemen did a "fantastic job" in confining the fire to one classroom, and in cleaning up afterward. The damage from the fire, which began for undetermined reasons in a closet, was repaired over the weekend, and VanDeusen said no school time was lost.

Small Business Relief

WASHINGTON, D.C. Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) has announced the House Small Business Committee has commenced hearings on his legislation to provide emergency relief to small business concerns with fixed-price government contracts hurt by inflation and increased fuel costs.

The legislation, first introduced by Fish last year, was reintroduced by the Millbrook Republican on the opening day of the 94th Congress.

Many small businesses, which have taken government contracts on a fixed-priced basis, have been badly hurt by the requirement that they deliver on the contract no matter how radically their own costs have been affected by the inflationary spiral, Fish said. "Enactment of this legislation would provide relief for these industries."

Under the terms of the legislation, a business applying for such relief would have to demonstrate that during the performance of the contract it has experienced or is experiencing significant unanticipated cost increases directly affecting the cost of the contracted item.

It would also have to be shown that the conditions which have caused such increases are being experienced generally by other small business concerns, and are not a product of poor management, negligence or underbidding.

Under the legislation, the relief would be the release of the contractor from his obligation to perform.

"The effort here is to prevent a contractor from incurring further losses which he may not be able to absorb, not to provide a contractor with additional money," Fish explained.

The legislation would cover contracts entered into between Aug. 15, 1971 and April 30, 1974, with the act terminating by Dec. 31, 1975.

Support for June Primary

ROSENDALE

Support for making June the month for a permanent primary election came this week from County Legislator Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6) who is asking the county board to go on record in favor of his proposal.

Klein points out that the New York State Assembly passed legislation recently fixing a June primary but that "it is the announced intention of the Republican members of the State Senate to kill such legislation."

The Rosendale lawyer feels it is clear from public demonstration and pronouncements concerning the September primary in 1974 that New York citizens prefer an earlier June primary.

Klein maintains that the voting public should be afforded maximum exposure of candidates before being called upon to exercise their choice.

He also feels that with the stringent financial limitations imposed on candidates by recently enacted election reform legislation, more campaign time is required to adequately inform the electorate of the issues and qualifications of candidates.

Klein thinks a September primary is disadvantageous because many persons vacation during July and August and are less inclined to follow the issues of a primary campaign during that period. This, he said, increases the prospects of a poor choice for elected office.

"A permanent primary date is highly preferable to one that changes annually subject to the whims of the State Legislature," Klein said, adding that 1976 is a presidential election year and would necessitate a primary date no later than June since political nominating conventions will be held in July of 1976 and delegates must be chosen in advance of that date.

County Gets Welfare Share

Ulster County is receiving $1,115,779 this month as its share of federal and state funds for anticipated welfare expenditures in March, according to announcement made by State Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

Dutchess County is receiving $1,283,219, Greene County, $287,927; Orange County, $1,952,808 and Sullivan County, $655,328.

A total of $90 million is being distributed to the 57 social service departments in the state, according to Levitt. The money represents about 90 per cent of the federal and state share. The federal share amounts to $50,300,179.

In addition, Levitt announced the distribution of $135,830,175 to the City of New York for the period

March 1 to March 15. Federal regulation requires semi-monthly payments to New York City.

Chef Awarded Damages

KINGSTON

An Ellenville chef was awarded $7,500 in a negligence suit brought against Ellenville Hospital in Ulster County Supreme Court last week. The jury brought in the verdict late Friday with Justice Harold Hughes presiding.

Miguel Salgado sought damages for injuries he sustained when he slipped on ice at the main entrance to the hospital, Dec. 19, 1973. According to testimony, he struck his head on a glass door causing a severe laceration to his forehead. Salgado also sustained a fractured nose and injuries to his hand which was caught under the door. He was reportedly disabled for two months after the accident.

Salgado was represented by William P. Curran. The firm of Cook, Tucker and Dwyer was counsel for the hospital.

Consulting Engineer Explains Impact of Barclay Sewer District

By CARL GRAHAM

SAUGERTIES
The Barclay Heights Sewer Improvement District will have a beneficial effect on the environment, according to the engineer who designed it.

Engineering consultant Alex Diachishin, speaking at a public hearing Monday night in the Saugerties Town Hall, reviewed plans for the sewage collection system that will feed into the sewage treatment plant to be built by the Village of Saugerties.

Diachishin's review was essentially a rerun of a similar public hearing held in January, this time with an even smaller audience. Supervisor A. Michael Schovel was unable to attend but all four councilmen were there, along with Town Clerk Margaret Dachenhausen and James Mullen of the Department of Environmental Conservation office in New Paltz.

The proposed sewer system for the 855 homes in the Barclay Heights district will cost an estimated $2,388,500, of which $388,500 is eligible for state and federal aid, leaving a net local cost of $2 million. The town has a "preliminary commitment" from the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) for a 40-year, five per cent loan to cover $1.8 million, and is eligible for, but not sure of getting, an FHA grant for the remaining $200,000.

The system is designed to handle 1.5 million gallons of waste a day. One benefit from the proposed system will be a lowering of ground waters in Barclay Heights, where many homeowners use sump pumps, Diachishin said.

Another benefit will be an improvement in the quality of the Esopus Creek and the Hudson River, which receive runoff water from the area. The Esopus Creek is now rated Class C (suitable for fishing) and the Hudson River Class A (potable). The nearest municipal water supply downstream taking water from the river is in Port Ewen.

Homes in Barclay Heights now use individual septic systems, and pollution of ground waters when they malfunction was one of the reasons for going to a collection system, Diachishin said. The area is served by the Glasco Water District and no effect on this is expected since the water source lies well outside the district, he noted.

The decision to build a single treatment plant in Saugerties was selected over two alternatives, one of which would have built treatment plants in both the village and in Barclay Heights. A third alternative would have seen treatment plants built in both places and a third in the Glasco area. The decision to go with a single plant was made because it represented the smallest net cost and the smallest annual operating cost of the three alternatives, Diachishin said.

Another plan would have built a "land disposal" treatment plant in Barclay Heights, but would have involved a considerable amount of land to take care of the aeration system, spray area, a lagoon, and a buffer zone to separate it from the residential area, estimated at 60 acres by Diachishin.

The sewer improvement area is bounded on the north by the Village of Saugerties, on the east by Route 9W, on the south by Barclay Lane, and on the west by the Esopus Creek.

Saugerties School Board Proposes Budget

SAUGERTIES
The Saugerties Board of Education has proposed a $7,503,987 budget for the 1975-76 school year, up 6.2 per cent ($435,904) from the current year's figure.

The vote was 7-0, with Earl Benjamin absent and John O'Rourke, chairman of the Budget Committee, abstaining. The budget will be the subject of a public hearing Monday, May 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

O'Rourke said that inflation accounted for much of the increase, but that his committee had made major cuts in transportation, building repairs, supplies, and equipment. It does not represent any cuts in personnel or programs, he said.

O'Rourke said the figure was computed with 1974 state aid formulas and assessment figures. Teacher contracts are now under negotiation and it is "doubtful" they will be settled by the time the budget is voted on, and the administration will support the budget since student programs will not be affected, he said.

O'Rourke, explaining his abstention on the vote, said the proposed budget represented the majority view of the committee, noting that he had been outvoted by the Rev. John Needham and Peter Kramer. Speaking as an individual board member, he said he was concerned because "I know that the overall increase is slight compared to other districts, I do not feel that the state will revise its aid figures upward, I think (teacher) negotiations will be extended and it is doubtful if they will be settled by budget vote time, and it nothing changes by the time the people vote I do not think that this budget will pass."

The board set the budget vote for Wednesday, June 4, from noon until 9 p.m. in the Cahill School gymnasium. Proposed changes, amendments, or alterations in the budget must be submitted with petitions signed by a minimum of 100 qualified district voters no later than Wednesday, May 28.

The district's annual meeting will be held Tuesday, June 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Up for election are four board seats, including three-year terms for the positions now held by Needham, Wesley Maxwell, and Mrs. Ann Bogert. The fourth is for a one-year term to complete the term of Philip Meade, who resigned last year and was replaced by interim appointee Ray Fuller.

Potential candidates must file petitions with the district clerk no later than Monday,

May 5, bearing the signatures of at least 25 qualified voters, and must specify whether for the one-year term or for a three-year term.

In other action, the board:

• Approved a $12,231 bid by George Ostoyic for a rewiring job at Mt. Marion Elementary School.

• Passed a resolution opposing any cut in state aid.

• Directed Howard Wittenberger, Saugerties representative to the BOCES board, to give careful consideration to raises being considered for BOCES administrators and to extension of BOCES programs.

• Accepted with regret the retirements of Evelina Fuller, Walter Hill, and Mrs. Rose Ecker, effective June 30.

City Man Files Suit

KINGSTON

A city man who lost his left leg in a car-pedestrian accident on the State Thruway in 1972 which claimed the life of another local man, is suing the City of Kingston and State Trooper David R. Darling, charging alleged false arrest and negligence.

The trial began in Ulster County Supreme Court Monday with Donald C. Parvi seeking the damages.

According to a report of the Thruway State Police, Parvi, who was 36 at the time of the accident, May 28, 1972, resided at 42 Abeel Street. On the night in question, he and another city resident, Donald Dugan, 51, were walking across the Thruway, one mile south of the Thruway Interchange when at 10:15 p.m. they were allegedly hit by a car operated by Trooper David Darling, then 25, of Catskill. Darling was reportedly on his way to Stony Point to report for duty on the midnight shift.

Darling, police said, was southbound in the passing lane when he observed the two men in front of his vehicle. He reportedly made a futile attempt to avoid the pedestrians by swerving to the right.

Dugan and Parvi were hit, with Dugan subsequently run over by several cars and declared dead at the scene. Parvi was hurled off the pavement. He was taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment of multiple injuries, the police report said.

Parvi is being represented by Streifer and Barnovitz, the City of Kingston is represented by Cook and Tucker and Darling has Levinson, Jenkins and Cassidy as counsel.

Justice John T. Casey is presiding.

Let's Move

Congress is now moving briskly toward a massive increase in federal spending to put the unemployed to work. This is a most welcome development, for no single undertaking is more important in the many-faceted war on recession.

The 5.9-billion-dollar program now being considered in the house would have the undesirable effect of substantially increasing the already huge deficit projected in the administration budget. This would be more than compensated for by the stimulus to employment and the consequent impetus to a faltering economy.

The special-appropriation bill attacks the unemployment problem on several fronts. One large portion of the money allocated for this purpose, 1.6 billion dollars, would beef up the public service jobs program now under way, and another 412 million would underwrite a badly needed summer youth employment plan.

Emergency aid to urban and rural areas where there are high levels of employment would get 875 million, administered by the Economic Development Administration. The hard-hit automobile industry would benefit by 443 million to be set aside for purchase of vehicles by federal agencies. For construction, repair and improvement of hundreds of public buildings the General Services Administration would receive 465 million. Additional hundreds of millions would be poured into Small Business Administration loan funds, postal facilities and projects of the Corps of Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation, all with the object of providing more jobs.

That, more than anything else, is what the economy needs—and in a hurry. It is good to find Congress in the mood for prompt action.

Right to Publish

There is no easy answer to the question whether the names of rape victims should be publicized. Considerations of regard for the sensibilities of the victim and her family come into conflict with the obligation of the press to report the news, and with the public's less clearly defined right to know.

It was not precisely this question that the Supreme Court dealt with in its ruling on a Georgia case, however. The court held, rather, that a state law making it a misdemeanor to publicize the identity of a rape victim was not constitutionally valid. In so doing it rejected the claim of the plaintiff—the father of a girl who had been raped and murdered—that in publicizing her identity an Atlanta television station violated the family's right to privacy.

This is a tragic matter, one which evokes deep feelings of compassion for those who suffered from this disclosure. Yet the high court's decision holds to constitutional principles which must not be undermined.

Newspapers and broadcasters may refrain from publicizing the names of rape victims if they wish; the court said nothing to restrict them in this regard. But it is of great importance that the right of the media to publish not be restricted, lest this lead to the weakening of precious First Amendment guarantees which undergird our democracy.

Berry's World

"What's new with my family is I feel like I'm living in another new Norman Lear situation-comedy breakthrough!"

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten
WASHINGTON—Behind the bulwarks of the Federal Reserve Board, a $37,000-a-year government economist has been directing a Watergate-style assault on the press.
He is Reed Irvine, a strident, right-wing propagandist, who has used his federal post to gather ammunition for his anti-press campaign from unsuspecting government researchers.
He has also used Federal Reserve Board facilities, telephones and stationery to prepare broadsides against the press.
His operation has certain similarities to that of the notorious White House plumbers, whom former President Nixon assigned to hound the press. A spokesman denied, however, that the Federal Reserve Board had anything to do with Irvine's anti-press activities.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Irvine's AIM is Off the Beam

In this event, Irvine would appear to have violated the law. For the U.S. Criminal Code bans any federal employee from using "federal property of any kind for other than officially approved activities." It also bars the "use of . . . official information not made available to the general public (for) furthering a private interest."

If his superiors didn't authorize the attacks upon the press, Irvine could be in serious trouble on both counts. The statutory penalty for each is two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The Federal Reserve official operates his anti-press campaign under the name Accuracy in Media. He has attacked the New York Times, Washington Post, and other assorted publications and TV documentaries. Ralph Nader and ourselves are under fire from AIM.

In turn, the Irvine unit has defended not only the Big Banking complex but also Big Oil, Brass Hats, right-wing dictatorships, ITT and the various government agencies attendant upon them. While Richard Nixon lasted, AIM frequently upheld his administration against press criticism.

But AIM labors under even greater burdens than ideological bias and reverence for sacred cows. The group has solicited and accepted financial contributions from the beneficiaries of its favorable verdicts.

From its cluttered office, for example, AIM has sent appeals for funds to oil companies and has received back secret oil contributions. In turn, Irvine has blasted the New York Times, Newsweek and other publications for criticizing oil company profits.

Irvine has also kept up a torrent of abuse against us, characterized by misstatements, distortions and out-of-context quotations. Normally, we don't respond to irresponsible attacks, but Irvine's charges reached such a volume that we began to do some checking.

On Nov. 3, 1974, for instance, we quoted charges from a Library of Congress report that the Inter-American Development Bank had helped to destroy the Allende government in Chile by withholding loans.

Irvine, misusing his role as a Federal Reserve Official, obtained a copy of the unpublished report from its author, Jonathan Sanford. Next, Irvine called Sanford's boss, Charles Gellner, to complain about the report. Gellner also had no idea of Irvine's connection. "He said he was with the Federal Reserve Board," Gellner told us.

Accepting Irvine at his word, Gellner asked Irvine to reduce his objections to writing. Irvine did this on Federal Reserve Board stationery. We have a copy of the letter, clearly headed "Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System . . . Office Correspondence."

Gellner, still thinking he was dealing with a government official, assigned his staff to work on the Irvine letter. Not until Gellner belatedly discovered Irvine's AIM role, did he end his cooperation. Thereafter, Gellner refused to furnish Irvine with more government information.

As Sanford recalls it, "We dealt with this guy as if it were official Fed policy. We were victims of this thing." Agreed Gellner: "Irvine was at least wearing two hats."

Meanwhile, Irvine used the material he had gotten under false colors to attack our column. He took out a quarter-page ad in the Washington Post on February 18 to publicize the attack upon us.

Irvine's misuse of his federal post turned out to be a factual disaster as well as a possible criminal offense. The Inter-American Development Bank ran a brief audit for us and found that our figures were accurate but Irvine's figures were off by $17 million. Irvine's analysis of the Chilean situation was also so inept that Sanford reacted by "laughing."

FOOTNOTE: We have found it impossible to deal with Irvine. During one phone conversation with our office, he asked no less than 10 times, with steadily heightening shrillness, whether we were taping the phone conversation. We were not. He has now refused to comment on our charges, except through a laborious exchange of written interrogatories: tories.

On the Right

Is All This Disclosure Really Necessary?

By William F. Buckley

In recent weeks several correspondents, thoughtfully sending me copies, have triumphantly advised editors of newspapers in which this feature appears, that "Mr. Buckley was himself a member of the CIA," and that under the circumstances, that fact should be noted every time a newspaper publishes a comment by Mr. Buckley on the CIA.

Now the Boston Phoenix, which is that area's left-complement to the John Birch Society magazine, publishes an editorial on the subject that begins with the ominous sentence, "William F. Buckley, Jr.'s past is catching up with him. In the 50's he served as E. Howard Hunt's assistant in the Mexico City CIA station . . ." Accordingly, the Phoenix has protested to the editor of the Boston Globe, and reports to its readers, "Ann Wyman, the new editor of the Globe's editorial pages, is now considering whether to append Buckley's past CIA affiliation to his column, which appears regularly in the Globe. Wyman intends to consult with other Globe editors . . . The Globe may finally be on to him."

If so, it would indeed have taken the Globe a very long time, since it began publishing me in 1962, and my CIA involvement, a 25-year-old friendship with Howard Hunt is, among newspaper readers, as well known as that Coca Cola is the pause that refreshes. But one pauses to wonder what is the planted axiom in the position taken by the Boston Phoenix?

It is true that I was in the CIA. I joined in July, 1951, and left in April, 1952. Now the assumption, not always stated, is that obviously anybody who was ever a member of an organization, defends that organization. But one wonders: why should this be held to be true? The most prominent critics of the CIA are in fact former members of it.

I attended Yale University for four years. Is it the position of the Boston Phoenix that, therefore, everything I write about Yale is presumptively suspect, because as a Yale graduate I am obviously pro-Yale? But it happens that shortly before entering the CIA I wrote a book very critical of Yale. And, as a matter of fact, I have in recent years written critically about Yale on a dozen occasions. So consistently, indeed, that Miss Wyman may feel impelled to identify me, at the end of every column I write about Yale, in some such way as: "Mr. Buckley, a graduate of Yale, is, as one would expect, a critic of that university."

I am a Roman Catholic, and have written, oh, twenty columns in the last ten years critical of developments within the Catholic Church. Should I be identified as a Roman Catholic?

I like, roughly, in the order described, 1) God, 2) my family, 3) my country, 4) J.S. Bach, 5) peanut butter, and 6) good English prose. Should these biases be identified when I write about, say, Satan, divorce, Czechoslovakia, Chopin, marmalade, and New York Times editorials?

I wonder if Miss Wyman is being asked, implicitly, to label the religious, or ethnic backgrounds, of her columnists? "Mr. Joseph Kraft, who writes today on Israel, is a Jew." That would presumably please the editors of the Boston Phoenix. Or, "Mr.

William Raspberry, who writes today about civil rights in the South, is black." Or how about: "Mr. John Roche, who writes today in favor of federal aid to education, receives a salary from Tufts whose income depends substantially on federal grants."

Pete Hamill, who laughed his head off a few years ago at the hallucinations of Robert Welch, asks in the Village Voice: "Is Bill Buckley still a member of CIA? Have any of Buckley's many foreign travels been paid for by CIA?" One columnist recently wrote that National Review's defense of the CIA, and my own friendship for Mr. Howard Hunt, might suggest that the CIA had indeed put up money for National Review over the years, though he conceded that if that were the case, the CIA was indeed a stingy organization — Mr. Garry Wills knows, at first hand, something of the indigence of that journal. Unfortunately Mr. Wills is the exact complement of Mr. Revilo Oliver, who was booted out of the John Birch Society for excessive coquiness sometime after he revealed that JFK's funeral had been carefully rehearsed. Both are classics professors by background. Perhaps one should identify anyone who writes about politics and is also a classics professor as being that? The Boston Phoenix and Miss Wyman should ponder that one.

Profit Motive and Nursing Homes

WASHINGTON — They're exposing nursing homes again. But, without detracting from the excellent work on the topic by such men as The Village Voice's Jack Newfield, how much good do these repeated exposures do?

"An old Tammany Hall statesman once said, 'Reform is a morning glory.' This goes for muckraking too. We rake a little muck, and move on; the money boys stay," writes John Hess, a reporter for The New York Times, who has also done written first-rate articles on the subject.

If muckraking and investigatory journalism sometimes accomplish nothing of substance, they often offer villains against whom we can get off our anger and indignation. Thus, stirred by the publicity, the Senate has recently hung a certain Bernard Bergman up by his ears.

The owner of a string of nursing homes, Mr. Bergman has been driven before the inevitable cameras and investigatory committees, there to be stigmatized as a high-profit louse. However, presuming Mr. Bergman has broken no laws, it is difficult not to feel sympathy for him when a professional boy scout like Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) asks him, "How is it possible for a man to parlay $30,000 30 years ago to a fortune, by his own accounts, of $24 million — two-thirds of it in nursing homes?"

Of all people, Mr. Percy ought to be able to answer that question. He, too, started out as a poor boy and made it into the big money. Percy did it by operating a camera company; Bergman did it by operating a nursing home company. Other than that each man made his dough in a different industry, it's hard to see what gives Percy the right to lord it over Bergman. They both did the same thing: They maximized profit.

That's what free enterprise does; that's its only goal. Hence the cliché expression, "the bottom line." Every businessman in America will tell you that the bottom line is all that counts. By its own self-definition, private-enterprise capitalism has no calculus for, no way of handling any other value except profit and loss.

A beginning student in economics knows that the capitalist, in seeking to invest, looks only for the business which will give him the highest rate of return at the lowest possible risk of losing his money. It makes no difference what the nature of the business is. It can be manufacturing cameras, processing sausages or running nursing homes. To a capitalist with money to invest, the only calculable difference between a sausage and an old woman dying of diabetes is which commodity represents the potentially highest rate of return.

Thus, since Sen. Percy is on record as approving of our system of free-market death houses for the aged, instead of castigating Mr. Bergman, he should be congratulating him for his business acumen. But no, he scorns Bergman and talks some kind of dribble about the large number of "dedicated operators in the industry."

A capitalist of Percy's rank and stature knows perfectly well there are no dedicated operators in any industry who are dedicated to anything but profit maximization. Everybody who grows up in America knows that, although sometimes we prefer to push the fact into the corners of our minds since it is less injurious to the spirit to imagine that

U.S. Steel isn't in business to make the most money, but because "they're involved."

By training and life experience we know what they're involved in, but, by failing to remember that profit maximization is the single constant of all business, we allow the politicians to beguile us with witless controversies about such fictions as "excess" or "windfall" profits. Under capitalism no such thing can exist.

There are only high profits and low profits which are determined in one way: comparative return on invested capital. However, if people can be suckered into believing in "excess" profits, they can also be brought to believe that "responsible" businessmen, running nursing homes and pharmaceutical companies, will turn into economic hippies and shoot for a moral, rather than a maximum rate of return.

Forget such liberal mush. It is for us to decide whether Adam Smith's famous "unseen hand" realizes our values as successfully in the death house industry as well as it does in the sausage industry. If the answer is yes, don't dump on the Bergmans, or think that warehousing the sick and dying for profit can be ameliorated by government regulation. In all industries, this one too, the regulatees have the preponderant influence over the regulators.

If the answer is no, you might consider the example of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Van Dusen. The 77-year-old former president of Union Theological Seminary and his 80-year-old wife recently took sleeping pills together to end their lives. In a letter explaining why, they said one of the reasons they did it was because they didn't want to "die in a nursing home."

Spring Hasn't Sprung: But Those Snows Have

"Spring is just around the corner, if we can just get the streets cleared in time for the parade," sighed a tired and somewhat sarcastic Cincinnati police dispatcher.

A thick blanket of new-fallen snow stretched from the Plains to the Atlantic coast today, just 10 days before spring's official arrival — and yet another winter storm was building up over the west.

Cincinnati police handled some 150 accidents Monday as the worst snowstorm of winter swept over the southern Ohio city, dumping six inches of snow.

Heavy snows socked much of the East and Midwest Monday, with falls ranging from a foot in Kansas to eight inches in western North Carolina.

Deep slush and ice-covered highways touched off a flurry of auto accidents which left at least four persons dead. Storm-related traffic deaths were reported in Louisa and Perryville, Ky., Portland, Ind., and Havana, Ill.

Hundreds of cars slipped off icy Southern Illinois roadways and hundreds of schools were closed in Illinois, Missouri and North Carolina.

Jonquils, hurrying to bloom in time for this year's early Easter, were smothered by Southern Illinois' worst storm of the season. Evansville, Ind., reported 9 inches of snow.

Storm and travel warnings were posted in at least 12 states from the Mississippi Valley to the Carolinas, Maryland and Delaware.

The storm lumbered over the Atlantic Coast and headed out to sea today. But a successor was developing in the southern Plateau and the central Rockies.

Heavy snow warnings were posted today for northern Arizona and the mountains of Colorado, where more than six inches of new snow was forecast. An avalanche warning remained in effect for the San Juan mountains of Colorado.

Locally heavy and blowing snow whipped the mountains of Utah and Southern California, and a winter storm watch was issued for the mountains of western New Mexico.

Flagstaff, Ariz., received three inches of snow.

Predict Resignation

Three Western European leaders who recently met with Soviet Communist Chief Leonid Brezhnev say he's in bad health despite a jovial public appearance last month. One delegate who declined to be identified said the three leaders predicted ill health would force Brezhnev to step down as General Secretary of the Communist Party by autumn. (UPI)

Another Phone Blaze

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fire broke out early today in a New York Telephone Co. building — the fifth blaze at a company installation within two weeks. Fire department officials called it "definitely suspicious."

Acting Fire Commissioner Stephen Murphy said an inflammable liquid apparently had been splashed on the floor of a records room on the 23rd story.

The fire was reported by the phone company at 2:21 a.m. and was declared under control at 2:50 a.m.

The phone company has been hit by four other fires in the past two weeks in the city. The first, in lower Manhattan Feb. 28, went to five alarms and knocked out service to 170,000 phones. The service today still was only partially restored.

Murphy said two telephone company engineers were fighting today's fire with hoses when firemen arrived. There were no injuries reported.

Ex-Governor Under Knife

CHICAGO (UPI) — Doctors are 95 per cent certain former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, released from a federal penitentiary Thursday, has lung cancer. They ordered him to undergo surgery today for removal of a lesion on his right lung.

Preparations for the three-hour operation were underway today in the Illinois Masonic Medical Center under direction of Dr. Arthur Haebick, a specialist in thoracic surgery.

Doctors said the upper lobe of Kerner's right lung must be removed and tested for cancer.

Haebick said there is a 95 per-cent chance the lung tumor is cancerous, but noted it was discovered early.

If there is no spread of cancerous cells, Haebick said, Kerner has a 50 percent chance of being cured. The doctor said a cancer patient is considered cured if there is no recurrence of the disease after five years.

"Histological tissue studies completed this morning are highly suspicious of a malignant tumor," Gerald Mungerson, executive director of the medical center, told a news conference.

Kerner will remain in intensive care for several days following the operation.

The 66-year-old former governor and U.S. Appeals Court judge entered the medical center Thursday night after tests at the federal penitentiary at Lexington, Ky., showed a spot on his lung.

He was paroled Thursday after serving seven months of

Swank Eatery Cited

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Bankers Club of America is one of New York's most elegant restaurants. It is also on the City Health Department's dirty restaurant list this week.

The Health Department cited the 60-year-old swank restaurant Monday. The reason: "mouse excreta on the floor of pastry preparation room" and dishwasher heated to 165 degrees instead of the regulation 180.

Another Recession Casualty

Hooker's Life Squeezed

DENVER (UPI) — A hooker's lot is not a happy one in these times of inflation and recession.

Both prices and business are down, a vice squad officer said. "It's hard times on the street."

"There's more competition for the dollar," said Police Capt. Jerry Kennedy. "There is no doubt there are less takers and the prices are coming down."

Kennedy said prostitutes were working harder trying to find customers. He said some of the women had started working the larger motels in the city because "business on the street is bad."

Kennedy said established prostitutes also were being challenged by newcomers to the profession — including coeds and out-of-work stenographers needing cash for tuition or food.

"The recession has caused more women to go into the business," said Kennedy. "They're amateurs — girls out of work and girls looking for ways to support themselves through college."

Kennedy said street prostitutes were caught by demands of pimps for a certain amount of cash daily as well as their own needs for money. He said the drop in business caused an increase in muggings by the pimps who used the women as lures.

"Less men have money to spend on it," he said. "One prostitute went up to three men last week and said she'd give them a bounce for $50 each. When they declined, she said she'd give them all a bounce for $50 but they said no. She said $25, but they still turned her down."

Kennedy said the effects of the recession on call-girl operations was not as clear.

He added judges in the city should give tougher sentences for convicted prostitutes. "We don't see any decline in prostitution," he said. "The penalties aren't stiff enough to deter them. The maximum penalty is $300 and 100 days, but the days aren't given often enough. More of them need to be given county jail terms."

A tax-free retirement plan for self-employed persons. Now at Heritage Savings Bank.

The self-employed retirement law has been changed. If you are a salesman, doctor, lawyer, dentist, operator of an unincorporated business, or otherwise self-employed, you can now deduct from your current year's income tax as much as 15% of your annual, self-employed income — up to a new maximum of $7,500 a year.

Heritage Savings Bank can help you take advantage of this new tax law. We can assist you in setting up an IRS approved, tax-favored retirement plan. And serve as trustee and depository for your retirement account. Presently, there are no brokerage or trustee fees levied for our services.

Better yet, not only is your retirement account contribution tax-exempt until you retire, but the interest you earn on your retirement account also falls into the same tax-deferrable category.

Most important, you know that your retirement savings at Heritage are safe. Secure. Guaranteed. Insured. And continually growing. You can earn up to 7 3/4% guaranteed interest per year (effective annual yield — 8.17%) with one of our six to seven year term deposits, with a minimum deposit of $1,000.

Just another example of how we provide for your secure future. And you.

Speaker Named For NASW Institute

Arthur J. Katz, Ph.D., Professor of Social Welfare at the University of Kansas, will be the keynote speaker at the 14th Annual Whitney H. Young Memorial Institute of the Hudson Valley Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers (NASW). The day-long Institute will be held on Thursday, March 20, at Vassar College in Poughkeepsie. The keynote address, as well as 10 afternoon workshops will carry out the theme: Increasing Demands and Diminishing Resources: Redesigning Services in a Tight Economy.

Dr. Katz received his Masters Degree in Social Work from Columbia University and his Doctorate Degree in Education from New York University. He served as Dean of the Graduate School of Social Work, Adelphi University, N.Y., and Professor and Dean, School of Social Welfare, University of Kansas, from 1968-1974. Dr. Katz, a Senior Fulbright Lecturer, is a member of the National Board, as well as the National Executive Committee, of the National Association of Social Workers.

Ten afternoon workshops will take place, focusing discussion in the following areas:

1—A Film Theatre, Chairman, Joseph J. Benzinger, MSW, District Supervisor, Catholic Charities Family and Community Services. This workshop is designed to inform participants about recent non-theatrical films available for the purposes of public information and education.

2—The Grass is not Greener: Delineating Staff Authority and Responsibility in Child Caring Institutions. Chaired by John Mordock, Senior Psychologist, Astor Home for Children, Rhinebeck, the workshop will be a discussion of critical incidents in decision making in 24 hour care facilities.

3—New Directions in Planning Services for the Released Mental Health Patient. Chairman is Cecil Seale, MSW, Regional Office, N.Y. State Dept. of Mental Hygiene. This workshop will deal with the use of community half-way houses and group residences for the care and treatment of mental patients outside the institution.

4—Casework with a Family in Economic Stress. Hannah Blumenfeld, MSW, Professor, Adelphi School of Social Work, and the Mid-Hudson Adelphi graduate program at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie.

5—Getting Tough is Coming Back: A look at Juvenile and adult correctional facilities from various perspectives. Frank Winoski, MSW, Resident Director of the Division for Youth Group Homes of Dutchess County, will chair the workshop and panel discussion.

6—New Pathways to Parenting: successful living with the exceptional child, the adoptive child, and the child of the single parent. Harold Horowitz, MSW, Director McQuade Foundation, New Windsor, will chair the workshop.

7—Comprehensive Planning for Human Services in Dutchess County. Chairman, Marc Miringoff, NSW, PHD, Office of the Mental Hygiene Commissioner of Dutchess County.

8—The New Accountability: Data Systems as a Threat to Civil Liberties of Children: Winston Ross, ACSW, Casework Supervisor, Graham School, Hastings-on-Hudson, will chair the workshop.

9—Establishing Priorities in Delivery of Social Work Services in the Schools. This workshop will be chaired by C. Richard Donohue, CSW, School Social Worker, Northern Westchester BOCES.

10—Nursing Home or Home Care: Criteria for Decisions— Grace Dean, CSW, Coordinator for Home Care Services, Castle Point Veteran's Hospitals will chair the panel discussion on a very timely issue today.

The day-long Institute is open to all professionals, volunteers, and persons interested in Human Services.

Further information and advanced registration are available by contacting Thomas Tighe, 272 Mill Street, Poughkeepsie. Registration will also be available on the day of the Institute, March 20, 9-10 a.m. at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie.

Junior League Survey

William Heidgerd, associate librarian for the Elting Memorial Library in New Paltz, and director of its historic collection, was recently presented with the Junior League of Kingston's complete seven volume survey of pre-1850 buildings in Ulster County. Making the presentation were Mrs. Theodore G. Peck IV and Mrs. Avery Leete Smith.

With a grant from the Council on the Arts to prepare the manuscript, the Junior League recently published "Early Architecture in Ulster County," which includes some of the 1750 buildings surveyed, plus additional noteworthy structures.

"Early Architecture in Ulster County" is available at O'Reilly's Stationery, the Happy House, the Senate House and the Book Center in Kingston, Fleurett's in Woodstock, Patentee Manor in Hurley and the Spotted Cow in Stone Ridge. For mail orders interested juniors are advised to write to the Junior League of Kingston, RD 5, Box 161, Kingston and enclose $6.75 which includes tax, postage and handling.

Reception Chairmen Announced

Miss Nora Hession, left, has been named chairman of a special cocktail reception sponsored by the St. Francis Hospital Women's Auxiliary, Poughkeepsie. The reception will be held Saturday, Apr. 5 from 5 to 7 p.m. in Champagnat Gallery Hall of Marist College. The work of artist Si Lewin will be on exhibition at that time. Reservations, which close on March 31, may be made by contacting Miss Hession or Mrs. Ann Amodeo, vice chairman. Other members of the ticket committee are Miss Mae Cassidy, Miss Catherine Hession, Mrs. Betty McCoy or Mrs. Frances Lynch.

An Lac Supporters of Paltz To Sponsor Benefit Thursday

An Lac Supporters of New Paltz will sponsor a household aids party with all proceeds to benefit An Lac Orphanage in Saigon, South Vietnam. The event will take place on Thursday, March 13, and will be held in the Fellowship Hall of the United Methodist Church, Main and Grove Streets, New Paltz, starting at 8 p.m. Further information is available from the group's president, Mrs. Joseph Burke, New Paltz, or from Mrs. Paul Doebl, Hyde Park.

Members remind their friends in the area who are concerned for these orphans that the organization also collects trading stamps, Betty Crocker coupons and bonus gift stamps, all of which can be redeemed to help provide supplies and materials for the orphanage. Contributions should be sent to Mrs. Joseph Burke, Andrea Drive, New Paltz.

Program Selected for Temple Emanuel Nursery School's Parents Meeting

"Art and the Preschool Child" is the program for the Temple Emanuel Community Nursery School's parent meeting to be held Thursday, at 8:00 p.m. at the social hall of the Temple at 243 Albany Avenue. Ms. Sharon Slotnick, the Teacher-Director of the Nursery School, will give the talk that will be illustrated with work done by the Nursery School children. "Ms. Sharon" is a New York State certified teacher. She attended Boston University (School of Visual Arts) and Hunter College, graduating with a BS degree in Education from State University of New York at New Paltz. Presently attending New Paltz where she is studying for her MS, Ms. Sharon has experience substituting in New York City Day Care Centers. She worked with retarded children at the New Paltz Middle School and student-taught at George Washington School and Fair Street Nursery School.

A business meeting will be held.

Temple Emanuel Community Nursery School is a co-operative nursery School and parents co-operate in the classroom, serve on working committees and the Board of Directors and have voting voice in the Nursery School. Those interested in enrolling their children in the school next year are invited to attend this meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Beef Buys Head the List This Week

Beef will again lead the parade of feature buys followed by pork and poultry. Otherwise, it's prices as usual on the retail meat scene this week, according to the Consumer and Market Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Leading the beef features will be ground beef from 60¢ to 80¢, ground chuck from 79¢ to 89¢, beef liver from 59¢ to 60¢, corned beef from 95¢ to $1.19, short rib from 65¢ to 68¢, and frankfurters from 79¢ to 90¢. In the roast line, beef chuck roast bone-in will range from 57¢ to 97¢, beef chuck roast boneless from 79¢ to $1.17, bottom round roast from $1.27 to $1.75, sirloin tip roast from $1.37 to $1.39 and beef shoulder roast from $1.05 to $1.40. Steaks well worth shopping for will be beef shoulder for London Broil from $1.47 to $1.49, beef chuck steak from 60¢ to $1.17, depending on trim and cut, cubed steak beef chuck from $1.33 to $1.60, and in the Eastern area — sirloin steak, top round steak, eye round steak, and beef shoulder steak all will be on special at $1.67.

Some scattered pork features will be smoked ham butt at 89¢, smoked ham shank at 70¢, sparerib pork from 97¢ to $1.19, and pork loin rib end as low as 87¢. Look for center cut chops from $1.37 to $1.60, bacon from $1.09 to $1.45, polish sausage from $1.20 to $1.40 and Italian sausage on special at $1.09. Some stores will have sales on canned hams, 3 pound hams from $4.00 to $4.89 and 5 pound hams from $6.55 to $7.99.

There will be a few thrifty buys on poultry. Fowl will be a windfall purchase at 39¢ in the Eastern area. Broilers and fryers will be featured from 49¢ to 55¢, small and medium size turkeys from 49¢ to 59¢, cornish game hens from 65¢ to 70¢ and roasting chicken at 55¢.

Sales on veal and lamb, if any, will be few and far between.

District Deputy Night for OES

Pretty Mold Adds Mealtime Interest

Are thrifty meals getting you down? You can't eliminate them, of course, but you can temper them with interesting dishes that won't throw the budget off its economical tracks. Ambrosia is a good answer because it's fruit and salad in one that can do double time as dessert. It's especially interesting when the fruit centers a mold that's an unusual combination of orange flavored gelatin and yogurt.

Keep budgeting uppermost in your mind by using seasonal fresh fruits as the accompaniment to the mold. Buy the bananas when they're on special, as they frequently are.

As an alternate suggestion, family or guests can enjoy a salad-dessert that has pineapple placed in the gelatin itself. An interesting flavor and texture is achieved by using shredded Cheddar cheese with whipped cream and gelatin. No additional fruit need be used with this mold. Simply unmold and garnish with curly endive or other salad green.

Heavenly Ambrosia

One package (6 oz.) orange flavored gelatin
Two cups boiling water
One and one-quarter cups cold water
One carton (8-oz.) plain yogurt
One and one-half teaspoons grated orange peel
One cup orange slices

One cup grapefruit sections
One banana, sliced
2 tablespoons coconut
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; add cold water. Chill until almost set. Add yogurt and orange peel; whip with electric or rotary beater until blended. Pour into oiled 4 1/2-cup ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on serving platter; surround with lettuce. Serve with combined fruit and coconut. 8 servings.

Fruited Cheese Mold

One package (3-oz.) lemon or lime flavored gelatin
One-half cup boiling water
One-half cup boiling water
One can (8 1/4-oz.) crushed pineapple, undrained
Three-Quarter cup (3 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
One cup whipping cream, whipped
Curly endive
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Stir in pineapple and liquid. Chill until partially set. Fold in cheese and whipped cream. Pour into oiled 4 1/2-cup ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on serving platter; surround with curly endive. 6 to 8 servings.

Wife Is Not Tickled by Husband George's Mustache

DEAR ABBY: Four months ago, when we were on vacation, my husband neglected to shave for a few days, so our daughter said: "Oh, Daddy, you'd look neat in a mustache, please grow one!"

Well, George grew a mustache. I didn't like it one bit, and I told him so, but he hasn't said anything about shaving it off. I don't hassle him about it, but he knows how I feel.

Some of our friends like George's mustache, and some don't, but George seems to hear only the compliments he gets on it.

Personally, I think he should listen to me. As his wife, I surely want what is best for him and I wouldn't steer him wrong.

Abby, why would a man insist on wearing a mustache (or a beard) when he knows his wife doesn't like it?

ONE WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Facial hair on men communicates a variety of messages. Among the most obvious are: "Like it or lump it, I'm old enough to shave and have the whiskers to prove it, and I'm doing my own thing." It's a symbol of independence, and in some cases, it's a decoration one courageously confers upon himself.

DEAR ABBY: What one thing most inspires you to write?

NOSY IN N.J.
DEAR NOSY: The Bureau of Internal Revenue.

DEAR ABBY: I prepared a huge, lovely dinner party myself. When my guests departed, they all thanked me and raved about how wonderful everything was.

The next morning, each one telephoned to tell me again how much they enjoyed the dinner, repeating the compliments about the food, etc.

Abby, I had no help, and there was plenty of cleaning up to do after that party, and I was very much annoyed with those unnecessary calls. Each one talked for 15 minutes to half an hour, and when they all finished, my morning was gone.

After having already thanked me, I felt it was totally unnecessary for them to call the next morning and take my time as they did.

On top of it all, one of the guests took a tremendous amount of meat for her second helping, and then asked for a doggie bag.

What is your opinion of both cases?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: In addition to verbal thanks on departing, a written note to reiterate one's appreciation is far more appreciated, and less intrusive than a telephone call. And as for the doggie bag number—Wow, and bow wow! Shame on her.

DEAR ABBY: My wife recently lost her mother whom we loved dearly. My wife was an only child and "Moms" left us a substantial sum of money.

Although we are a young family with young children and have had a difficult time making ends meet, we cannot bring ourselves to spend any of our inheritance.

We don't dislike money, and could have enjoyed spending some of "Moms" money while she was still alive if she had just made an occasional small gift to us and said: "Here, I know you can use a few luxuries, so please take it, and spend it and enjoy it!"

Abby, what do you think of this? Are we normal to feel as we do? Sign us . . .

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: I think you're probably sufficiently "normal" to get over your present attitude, and adopt the "better-late-than-never" philosophy. (P.S. Write to me in a year from now, and if you still can't spend it, I can recommend some dandy charities.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Barbed Wire
Snags Teacher

By JEAN BARNES

David Stewart, Whittier, Calif., describes his collection of barbed wire as a "low key" hobby. "I've never seen anyone get into a fight over a piece of wire," he said.

This is the kind of hobby that appeals to him for he combines his teaching career with parttime activities as a minister and supervisor for the Shaklee Marketing Corporation. In addition, he's a scoutmaster, Sunday School teacher and talented craftsman.

David, whose roots are in the Kansas soil, was familiar with barbed wire but his curiosity was aroused about barbed wire when he realized there was more than one or two kinds. "When you read into the subject, you find that most of it is old. The idea of barbed wire came just before the 20th century.

"When the first patent was put out on it almost every steel company in the East came out with as many different kinds of wire as they could find," he explained.

"In that 10 or 15 year period there were about 350 different kinds of wire manufactured. Some of it wasn't very good and, of course, it's rare now because not much of it was bought."

Collectors usually display 18-inch lengths of wire, although some display four-inch lengths, mounted and framed. David's collection, however, is a part of their home decor and in his classroom to be used in the study of American history.

"It seemed to me that barbed wire was something from the old West so I found some lodge-pole pine from Jackson Hole, Wyo., and made fence posts of them and then nailed my barbed wire to it." The posts and wire are then backed with western farm scenes which he has painted showing wheat fields at harvest time, windmills and cattle feeding on pasture land. Displayed in this manner, the collection makes an attractive wall accessory.

Adding to his collection is reserved for business trips and vacations through the midwestern part of the United States where, he explains, you can usually find unusual types.

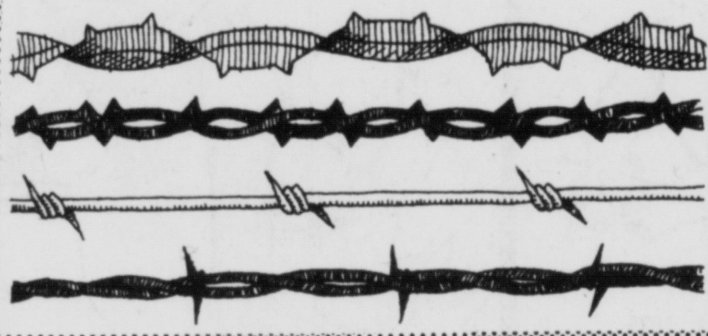

"Farmers often have piles of wire behind their barns and if you ask you can usually get two or three different kinds. They are generally very glad to help you. Of course, at the end of a fence usually there is a leftover bit you can help yourself to without doing any damage."

He tries to keep extra pieces with him for trading and considers buying a piece of wire an extravagance. "It's an inexpensive hobby."

"One thing I have chosen not to do," he said, "is collect the military barbed wire." Although he believes it an interesting study in itself and says he would like to have examples of military wires from around the world, he describes it as "wicked" material. "Most of it is heavy barbs on heavy wire. The Nazis put razor blades in their wire which made it deadly."

But he prefers the peaceful, pastoral type. "Barbed wire presents a story in American free enterprise. It's amazing to me how an idea can be altered enough to patent literally hundreds of different designs."

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: We live in an apartment house with a garage below it. There is, of course, a charge for parking in the garage.

In the past we have felt that we should pay our guests' parking fees, but it has become a little more than we can afford, and we wonder if it is necessary.

Would it be discourteous to allow our guests to pay their own parking charges? We have always paid our own fees when we visited other friends.

Mrs. L. Murray

Dear Mrs. Murray: It is not the host's obligation to pay parking charges. Anyone who drives in a crowded area recognizes the fact that he will have to park in a lot or garage and pay a fee. If your guests object, they must look for a space in which to park their cars on a nearby street.

When you invite them, it would be thoughtful to warn them that there is a charge if they choose to park in the apartment house space.

Dear Mrs. Post: What is the proper procedure when calling a person by phone at his home? When the phone is answered, I think that you should identify yourself and then ask for the person you want to speak to. Others feel that they need not identify themselves unless asked to do so.

Nora

Dear Nora: The nicest way to respond to the "hello" of the person answering your call is: "This is Mrs. Brown. Is Mrs. Jones in?" If the person you are calling answers, say, "Hello, Jean, this is Molly." It is not incorrect to wait for the other person to say, "Who is this, please?" but giving one's name establishes the identity immediately and saves time and possible confusion.

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question that I receive each week, I will send a free copy of Emily Post's Etiquette. The question chosen and its answer will be published in this column. Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of The Daily Freeman, and don't forget to include your name and address.

Nursing Homes Get A Setback

ALBANY — An appeals court has struck down a lower court ruling that had, for a time, offered the possibility of a reprieve for the 62 nursing homes in New York State — including two in Kingston — that face revocation of their license.

Supreme Court Justice William Murray of Troy had ordered the New York State Health Department to stop its hearings and bring individual court actions against the nursing home facilities because of alleged "prejudice" on the part of acting Health Commissioner Robert P. Whelan.

The health department announced Jan. 16 that it was moving to close the 62 nursing homes because of uncorrectable violations of federal fire resistance standards. The Albany Avenue Nursing Home and Orthmann's Sanitarium, both located in Kingston, are among the 62 wood-frame nursing homes in New York State that allegedly do not meet fire safety standards.

The Appellate Division of State Supreme Court ruled Monday, however, that license revocation proceedings should properly take place "within the administrative framework" of the health department, and not in the courts.

The two local nursing homes were scheduled to appear at license revocation hearings March 26 and 27 at the health department's regional office in White Plains.

IBM Excess Gain Ruling From Court

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A federal judge ruled Monday that four top executives of IBM Corp., including former U.S. Attorney General Nicholas B. Katzenbach, cannot be subpoenaed here to testify in a $15.5 million breach of contract and fraud suit against the mammoth firm.

Arguments and testimony in a civil trial between IBM and Catamore Enterprises Inc., an East Providence jewelry manufacturer, opened after selection of a six-member jury in U.S. District Court.

IBM asked the court in October 1972 to make Catamore pay $68,453 for lease of a computer system. The jewelry firm responded with a breach of warranty complaint, charging IBM's equipment wasn't doing the job its salesmen described.

It filed suit for $62 million charging breach of contract, breach of warranty, fraud and antitrust violation. Chief Judge Raymond J. Pettine ruled out the antitrust claim but attorneys said it will be pressed later.

Catamore asked the court Monday to subpoena Thomas J. Watson Jr., IBM director, chairman of the board Frank Carey, Katzenbach, vice president and general counsel, and W.C. Hume, senior vice president.

Pettine said court rules prevented him from issuing subpoenas for persons who live farther than 100 miles from the court. All four reside in the area near IBM headquarters in Armonk, N.Y.

The judge held out the possibility that the officers might be required to make depositions, statements taken in writing and presented to the court, in place of spoken testimony. "I cannot authorize service on these people. On the other hand, I don't want to place any litigants in the position where they cannot present their case," Pettine said.

Thomas K. Christo of Boston, Catamore's attorney, said the testimony of the IBM officials was necessary because the jewelry firm is trying to show that IBM management was responsible for the alleged fraud.

Moving Radar Added to Force

ALBANY
The New York State Police have acquired a new instrument for the detection of fuel-wasting speeders. Called "moving radar," it will do everything former radar units could do, but in addition will enable troopers to determine the speed of oncoming cars while the patrol car is moving. Superintendent William E. Kirwan said the new equipment, which has been purchased with a federal grant of $70,000, "is the most modern device available to police for determining the speed of vehicles."

Thirty of the units have been acquired and five more are available that have been used by troopers during a test period that began 18 months ago. Although it was not a factor in acquiring the new equipment, Mr. Kirwan said that the volume of letters complaining about speeding drivers has been increasing in recent months. "Aside from the primary function of traffic supervision to prevent accidents," the superintendent noted, "there is the additional urgency now for the maintenance of reasonable speeds because of the energy situation." Kirwan said that while most motorists are observing the 55 mile per hour speed limit, others are not. He pointed out that arrests by troopers for speeding last year totaled 202,737, a rise of 11.3 per cent over the 182,212 arrests in 1973. "Our latest traffic figures," Kirwan said, "indicate that the trend toward moderate speeds is declining. For January our speeding arrests came to 14,176, an increase of 78 per cent over the 8,053 arrests in the same month last year." The moving radar units will go into general use in all troops on Wednesday and will be in operation on a 24-hour-a-day basis. The 31 radar teams will continue to monitor traffic from a stationary position. The present radar equipment, that can be used only at a fixed position, will be used for backup purposes. The moving units when not being used by the radar teams will be used on patrol cars during day as well as night hours.

The new units have a range of 2,500 feet, about five times that of the older equipment. An interesting feature of the moving unit allows the trooper to set a predetermined speed so that when a motorist approaches at a higher speed, a warning beep is triggered. At the same time, speed of the oncoming car will appear on a screen and through a locking device will remain visible, showing the highest speed attained as it approaches the trooper. In addition to radar, the State Police have 525 speed computers, sometimes referred to as Vascar, which electronically calculate speed by determining how long it takes a car to travel a known distance. And aside from the modern devices now available, many arrests are made by watching the speedometer while trailing a car. In fact, 63,716 speeders were caught that way last year.

Two Women Still On FBI Most Wanted List

BOSTON (UPI) — Susan Saxe and Katherine Power, nice girls from good families and once known for their academic achievements and community service, have been on the FBI's Most Wanted List longer than any other women.

The two were Brandeis University students in 1970 when, authorities say, they murdered a Boston policeman. They have dodged the FBI for more than four years by blending into a counter-culture lifestyle.

Interest in the case has picked up recently following reports the girls have spent some time in Connecticut and Kentucky. Federal judges in both states have sent eight persons to jail for refusing to tell what they know.

FBI spokesmen decline to discuss specifics of the investigation. But, privately officials say they are more optimistic than before that the case may be nearing an end.

According to persons who have run across the two in their travels, they have false identities and confide only in each other.

Miss Saxe and Miss Power are the last of four women who made the FBI's list during 1970 when violence among college radicals gave authorities a new problem — finding wanted criminals who blended into the youth culture that sprouted on campuses.

Angela Davis, a self-proclaimed Communist, made the list for her alleged complicity in a Marin County, Calif., courtroom shootout that resulted in Judge Harold Daley's death. She evaded the FBI for two months. After capture she was found innocent in a trial.

Bernardine Rae Dohrn, a leader of the militant Weathermen faction of the Students For a Democratic Society, was dropped from the FBI's most wanted list in December after three years when government charges against her in a Michigan bombing case were dismissed. She is still wanted on interstate flight and firearms violations.

Savago Rejects Koenig Suggestion Concerning Parking Garage

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
"Mayor Koenig isn't offering anything that hasn't been available all along," Legislator Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) said today to the suggestion Monday that the county make use of the city's parking garage on North Front Street rather than purchase the Buick property adjacent to the County Office Building.

"It appears that the mayor has a 'white elephant' on his hands if he can offer 75 parking spaces at the city garage," Savago countered, adding that "it is not up to the county to bail the city out of its past mistakes."

Savago also took exception to Koenig predicting that the total cost of acquisition, demolition and paving of the Buick property would exceed $350,000. The legislature chairman pointed out that the property is already paved with the exception of the section on which the Buick Garage now stands, and that the County Highway Department would cart away any of the debris from demolition. The cost of acquiring the property is $235,000.

"I still feel that we should have more parking next to the County Office Building," Savago explained. "What the mayor has offered is four blocks away and apparently people do not want to use it or they would."

Savago said that his proposal will pay for itself in that the parking lot will be operated in the same manner as the successful parking operation the county now has behind its Court House on Wall Street. The Buick property also offers the county a brick building of 3,000 square feet which will provide much needed office space for the Probation Department, he said.

Regarding Koenig's criticism of the county for planning to remove the Buick property from the city tax rolls, Savago countered with a litany of properties the city itself has removed from its own tax rolls.

Savago recalled that "the mayor did not complain when the O'Connor Funeral Home was acquired by the state, when the Montgomery Ward and two parking lot properties were acquired by the city on North Front Street. He named three parking lots on Broadway and the new City Hall as property taken off the tax rolls "while the old City Hall decays" on non-taxable property.

The legislature chairman too recalled Koenig's proposal that the county "give" its Gage Street property to the city. "We sold the property at auction instead, and returned that property to the city tax rolls," Savago explained.

Suggesting that there is support for the purchase of the Buick property, Savago told of the Ulster County Planning Board's endorsement, of the unanimous approval given the proposal by the County Building Committee and of the fact that the county has proven that it can manage a parking lot with financial success.

He pointed to the fact that the county now employs senior citizens and disabled veterans as lot attendants at a total cost of $8,000 as compared to the $19,000 parking payroll the city maintains. Savago also noted that the county parking lot behind the Court House is presently at capacity on a daily basis.

With regard to the mayor's plea for a wait and see attitude and his comment that the Social Services Department is moving out of the County "privity" to such information when it is merely in the stage of proposal rather than fact. He suggested that if the county does decide to relocate the welfare offices "it will be at least four years or more before such a move could be completed."

Smith Charges Mayor With 'Creating Issue'

KINGSTON

Alderman Brian D. Smith (R-Third Ward) has accused Mayor Francis R. Koenig of creating "political issue" in his opposition to the county's purchase of the Buick garage on Main Street.

"He could utilize his time more beneficially for the city by helping the Buick company relocate within the city limits," Smith said.

Koenig joined with County Legislators Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, John Dwyer and Eugene Perry on Monday in opposition to the county's plans to purchase the Buick garage for some $235,000 to create some 80 parking spaces to serve the county office building.

Koenig suggested the county utilize parking space available in the Uptown Parking Garage on North Front Street for a 60 to 90-day trial period rather than embarking on a project that the mayor estimates would cost the county $350,000 and the city $138,000 in assessments.

Smith notes that the city's urban renewal projects removed hundreds of thousands of dollars from the city tax rolls while city demolition in recent years created six parking lots (on Central Broadway and in the uptown business district).

Koenig and Gorman said that argument was "not analogous" to the present situation. They claim the city parking lots were acquired to "revitalize its business sectors" while the county plan offers no such promises.

Smith further states that "all local government both county and city should be centrally located; that sufficient parking should be provided to encourage people from outlying areas to come to Kingston to do their governmental and private business which results in increased sales taxes revenues, increased business, and results in a growing city instead of a stagnant or dying city."

Gorman is in favor of moving most county facilities to the 75-acre Golden Hill complex the county owns.

Smith also states that "the parking lot would be a metered lot and would not be conducive to employee parking." County officials say the lot would be an attended lot.

In conclusion, Smith said, "I regret the mayor is trying to make a political issue out of this important project."

The County Legislature is expected to vote on the issue Thursday night. A simple majority would be required for passage. Gorman predicts "an extremely close vote."

Hinchey Explains 'Catskill Study Bill'

SAUGERTIES
Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-Saugerties) said Monday that his bill calling for a two-year extension of the Catskill Study Commission does not advocate formation of a state "super agency," but merely proposes that the commission be given another two years to further study the specific questions of land use and economic development in the Catskill region.

Hinchey's proposal has come under some criticism of late from people who believe that it will result in formation of a state agency that would have ultimate control over land use in the Catskill region, without adequate input from the local level.

"My legislation," said Hinchey, "is essentially the same, philosophically, as the bill that established the commission two years ago, and had wide support throughout the Catskill region."

"The one significant difference is that my bill proposes that the focus of the extended commission be directed at land use planning and economic development. Those are two crucial concerns that must be addressed in greater detail, and it should be done deliberately and expeditiously."

Hinchey noted that his bill currently pending in the state legislature does not mention establishment of a permanent commission. Any legislation creating such a state agency, he said, would probably be proposed in 1977, following the two year extension.

Hinchey said he feels the Catskill commission should concentrate its efforts during the next two years on land use policies and economic development programs for the region, and then issue detailed reports and recommendations at the end of the extension.

"The commission's original charge was much too broad," he told the Freeman, "they did come up with some very valuable background studies, but there is an urgent need for far more detailed studies on these two critical areas."

In an interview with the Freeman, Hinchey also defended the way in which commissioners would be selected under his legislation.

"I suggest in my bill that the present commission staff might properly be reconstituted," he said, "but I'm not saying that there should be 10 new commissioners appointed. The new commission will require a degree of continuity, and it would be foolish to appoint 10 new members.

"And there are members of the current commission—people like Harold Finkle (Ulster County's representative on the commission)—who have done an excellent job and who should be retained."

If Hinchey's bill to extend the commission is approved by the legislature, executive and legislative leaders in Albany will have the option of appointing 10 new members, or of filling the commission with a combination of new and reappointed members. A number of local government leaders from throughout the seven-county Catskill region feel that appointments should be made on the local level to guarantee that the best possible people are named and so that they are directly accountable to the people.

But Hinchey discounts suggestions that state-appointedees would show less concern for the Catskills than those selected by local government leaders.

"Gov. Carey (who is empowered to name four of the commissioners) has a commitment and a deep sense of reverence for the Catskill region," said Hinchey, "I'm sure he would only choose people who are just as committed."

"Stanley Steingut (the Assembly Speaker, who can name three of the commissioners) will certainly ask me and (Sullivan County Assemblywoman) Jean Amatucci to recommend people we feel should be appointed to the commission."

"Warren Anderson (the Senate Majority Leader who also has three appointments) will, I'm sure, show the same and reappointed members. A number of local government leaders from throughout the seven-county Catskill region feel that appointments should be made on the local level to guarantee that the best possible people are named and so that they are directly accountable to the people."

"Warren Anderson (the Senate Majority Leader who also has three appointments) will, I'm sure, show the same concern. His history would indicate that he'll make his selections very carefully."

The Assemblyman, however, apparently hasn't changed his stand that the Catskills are in need of immediate and substantive land use development policies.

"There is federal legislation on land-use planning," he commented, "that could have a very serious effect on the Catskill region. The regional planning concept represents the home rule advocates very favorably compared to the federal approach. If we don't act responsibly, the federal government is going to do exactly what we don't want to happen."

State Award to Freeman

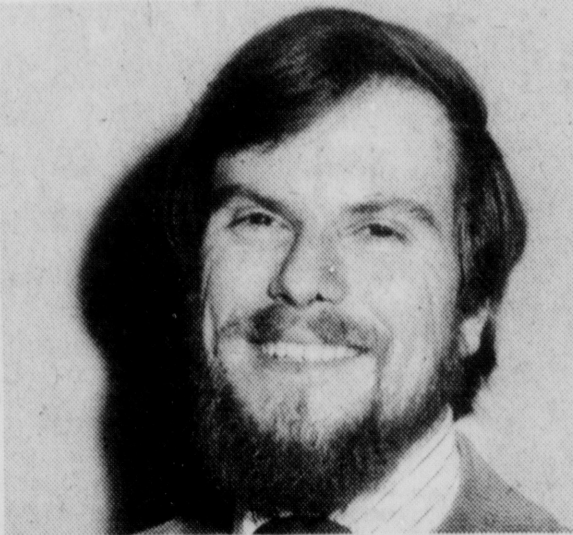

PORT CHESTER
The Freeman was named today as a top award winner by the New York State Publishers Association (NYSPA) for "distinguished excellence in reporting" for a series of articles by reporter Matt Spireng on irregularities in the Ulster County Sheriff's Department and at the county jail during 1974.

The award presentation was one of 16 announced in the statewide competition for daily newspapers at NYSPA's annual winter meeting here today.

The Freeman won the top reporting excellence prize for newspapers with circulation ranging from 10,000 to 25,000.

In announcing the award to the Freeman, the panel of judges noted: "Matt Spireng's stories directed public attention to irregular occurrences in the sheriff's department and the county jail through sound and thorough investigation. The newspaper displayed reportorial courage in attempting what might have proven an unpopular probe into the plight of prisoners, but in the final phases of the series won public support and contributed measurably to community welfare."

All entries were evaluated by a panel of judges chosen for their distinguished contributions in the newspaper field, journalism education and public life. The judges were John G. McCullough, editor of the editorial page of the Philadelphia Bulletin, Hugh N. Boyd, president of the New Brunswick (N.J.) Home News, Dr. Russell J. Jandoli, head of the journalism department at St. Bonaventure University, and William H. Wilcox, secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Department of Community Affairs.

Awards were presented for distinguished local reporting, distinguished editorial writing, distinguished community service and distinguished coverage of state government in each of four circulation classes.

The contest is designed to promote continuing excellence in all phases of editorial operations.

Other area newspapers in different circulation classifications winning awards in the competition included the Catskill Daily Mail, the Poughkeepsie Journal, the Newburgh Evening News and the Middletown Times Herald-Record.

The series of Freeman stories on irregularities at the jail and in the sheriff's department began in late February, 1974 following an escape from the jail. Fires at the jail followed, and during its coverage the Freeman revealed a "confidential" state Commission of Correction report on the jail, citing administrative problems at the jail as a major reason for incidents there. A county legislature probe followed, which turned up additional critical information about the operation of the jail and the sheriff's department by then Sheriff William B. Martin, who was defeated at the polls in November.

SAUGERTIES
Discussion revolved around the use and misuse of the dollar at a candidates' night for Saugerties Village elections held Monday night.

Members of the Village Party, including candidates James Gage for mayor and three trustee candidates Gregory Mulstay, Charles Steele, and John Carnright, each hit upon a phase of alleged wasteful fiscal practices of the current administration.

Incumbent Mayor Vernon Joe Benjamin, incumbent trustee Erika Hinchey, and trustee candidates Ronald LeBlanc and Thomas Zulick, along the Sawyer Party line, addressed themselves to accomplishments of the past two years and to personal qualifications of for their posts.

And LeBlanc, listed in all press releases as running on the Sawyer ticket as well as being listed on that line March 18 on voting machines, declared that he would "present myself as an independent, not affiliated with either party."

Blame was passed back and forth on certain issues, with Village Party members declaring that loose fiscal practices were the fault of the last two years' administration, while Sawyer Party members claimed to have been either outvoted or citing different priorities than simple cut-back of village services.

Carnright began the systematic Village Party approach by declaring "waste is evident in the present administration in two areas." He pointed to large balances last summer in the village's checking account saying these funds could have been better invested in short term notes, yielding, by his estimate, some $4,000 interest. He also claimed there was a lack in use of federal monies.

Zulick promised accountability and unity, "regardless of party affiliation." He suggested a monthly village audit and citizen advisory committees to give input to each village commission.

Mayoral candidate Gage, former village clerk for ten years, said he would offer "no lavish promises." He stated that he would not promise to reduce taxes or even to hold the line, but would investigate all avenues to try to achieve those ends.

Mayor Benjamin recited changes in the village that had occurred in his administration, such as street improvements, sale of land, and picking up back taxes, and commented that he was always available "the minute you pick up the phone." He added that he would encourage heavy duty business and medical practitioners to come to the village.

Mulstay called for strict scrutiny of the budget and fiscal responsibility. He wanted enforcement of noise controls on traffic and dogs and enforcement of speed limits in town. Mulstay said that the Recreation Commission has "laid dormant for the last two years."

LeBlanc commented that for the 13 years he has lived in Saugerties he has seen mostly "unchallenged elections," and added that he was happy to see the good turnout (there were about 85 persons present). He said he had observed the Village Party in control in the village, and then presented himself as an independent.

Steele pointed to finances as the base of village governmental functions and added, "I see no control." He pointed to deficit spending in several departments in the past two years, including some $11,000 in police in 1973-74 and his own projection of a $27,000 deficit in police for this fiscal year. He also gave figures for the street department that purported to show low budget estimates that resulted in deficit spending.

Hinchey said she had tried the "sensible approach," and specifically of her job as police commissioner she defended raises to patrolmen as they were making "only $6,200 a year, one of the lowest starting salaries in the state" prior to their recent raise.

Mason Wants Popular Election

ALBANY
State Senator Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th District), charging that this week's ongoing debate in the State Legislature on the filling of three vacancies on the State Board of Regents "is really about busing," today called for the popular election of both regents and the state commissioner of education.

"The ideological issue underlying all politicizing in the legislative chambers is busing," Mason said. "By insisting on busing, some of the present regents and Commissioner Ewald Nyquist are ignoring the wishes of parents and the vast majority of people in this state who time and time again in legislative surveys and Gallup Polls have voiced their strong opposition to uprooting their children from neighborhood schools."

Mason, a long time foe of busing for the purpose of creating racial balance, charged that busing is "a senseless practice which is enormously expensive, promotes racial tension and has no educational value whatsoever."

Mason's bill would amend Article 5 of the State Constitution, written in 1784, and provide for the election of 12 regents (as opposed to the present 15, appointed by the Legislature) who would serve one four-year term. His bill does not specify whether the regents would be elected at-large (statewide or from districts).

The commissioner of education would run for election with the governor, every four years. No limitations was placed on that term. Presently, the commissioner of education is appointed by the State Board of Regents.

Mason notes that regents are elected in 12 other states and that 10 of them have gone to that system since 1947. He also notes that commissioners of education or chief school officers are elected in 21 states. "Why can't we have it here in New York?" he asked.

Mason contends that "not only the issue of busing but also the skyrocketing educational costs in the state make it imperative that we rid ourselves of the present system of selecting regents and the education commissioner."

"If ever there was a time to restore the multi-billion dollar educational bureaucracy in this state to control of the people and the taxpayers, it is now," Mason concluded.

Mason represents the western sections of Ulster County (and Saugerties to the north) in a district that covers a large section of the Catskill Mountains.

Food Stamps Are A Big Help!

As food prices rise, more people become eligible for food stamps. You may be included.

- Eligibility depends on how much of your income is available to buy food. You do not have to be unemployed or on welfare to take advantage of food stamps.
- You can increase your food buying power 25 to 50% by using food stamps. The amount you pay for food stamps depends on your income.
- You have a right to food stamps, just like Social Security or unemployment compensation. Food stamps are provided by Congress and the U.S. Department of Agriculture so that every citizen will get enough food for proper health and nutrition.
- For full and complete information, contact your local food stamp certification or welfare office.

Sox Youth Movement

By United Press International

If the Chicago White Sox are to make a serious run at the American League pennant this year, youngsters like Bucky Dent and Brian Downing are going to have to make up for the departure of slugger Dick Allen.

A hint of that rosy expectation was evidenced Monday when Dent and Downing combined to drive in three runs in the Chisox' 8-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Downing, hoping to supplant holdout Ed Herrmann as Chicago's No. 1 catcher this season, doubled home two runs in a four-run eighth inning against new Cardinal relief pitcher Elias Sosa, while Dent pounded out three hits, triggered a three-run third inning rally with a leadoff double, and drove in one run.

Another youngster who's being counted on heavily this year to make up for the loss of a longtime reliable is James Rodney Richards, Richard, the 6-foot-8 righthander who the Houston Astros hope can fill the starting rotation void created with the off-season death of Don Wilson, held the Boston Red Sox hitless over three innings in starting the Astros off to a 7-3 victory.

First baseman Bob Watson led Houston's 13-hit attack with two hits and two runs batted-in, while southpaw Paul Siebert, another candidate for Wilson's job, also shut out the Red Sox for two innings while yielding two hits.

Elsewhere around the spring training camps...

Aurelio Rodriguez' two-run double broke open a tie game in the eighth inning and sent the Detroit Tigers off to a 7-4 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Tigers' "B" team wasn't as fortunate, however, falling 14-7 to the visiting Chunichi Dragons from Japan...

Two-run doubles by Greg Luzinski and rookie Jerry Martin helped the Philadelphia

Phillies kayo a pair of New York Met rookie pitchers Randy Tate and Nino Espinosa en route to a 7-3 victory. After Tate walked Dave Cash and Larry Bowa, Luzinski smacked his two-run double, while Martin highlighted a three-run, five-hit seventh off Espinosa with a double that brought home Alan Bannister and Terry Harmon...

Rookie Arturo De Fries slammed a ground rule pinch hit double in the eighth inning to drive in one run and scored another on an error as a "makeshift" Cincinnati Reds team nipped Kansas City 21-1. The Minnesota Twins edged the Los Angeles Dodgers on an unearned run in the eighth inning and also got the game's only home run—a pinch hit shot from rookie Randy Bass in the fifth...

Barry Foote and Mike Jorgensen, both of whom are being counted on to take up the runproducing slack created by off-season trades of Willie Davis and Ron Fairly, helped the Montreal Expos to a 4-3 victory over Japan's other visiting team, the Tokyo Giants. Jorgensen hit a two-run single in the eighth that tied the score at 3-3, while Foote lofted a 380-foot single over the drawn in centerfielder in the 10th inning to win the game...

Ron Blomberg, filling in for resting Bobby Bonds in rightfield, pounded out two hits and drove in two runs—including the game-winning—as the New York Yankees beat the Atlanta Braves 4-3. Larry Gura and Dick Tidrow blanked the Braves through five innings while the Yankees were building up a 4-0 lead...

The Baltimore Orioles, behind the combined eight-hit pitching of Ross Grimsley, Jesse Jefferson and Dyar Miller shut out the Texas Rangers 10-0. Catcher Elrod Hendricks paced the Orioles with three hits, while Alonzo Bumby drove in a pair of runs.

Vet Charged With Druggings

CHICAGO (UPI) — A north suburban veterinarian has been charged with drugging race horses 119 times during the 1974 racing season.

The charges were filed Monday with the Illinois Racing Board against Dr. Walter D. Wilkey, an Oak Park veterinarian.

Board attorney Jewel Klein charged Wilkey drugged the horses at three Chicago area race tracks.

If charges against the veterinarian are upheld, he faces a one-year suspension from racing, a substantial fine and possible criminal charges.

Miss Klein filed the charges against 16 horse trainers, contending they raced their horses knowing they were drugged. She said Wilkey drugged many of the horses in question.

The board Monday released the names of the final four of the 16 charged. They are: Elmer S. Clark, Jr. of Chicago, George J. Getz, Hialeah, Fla., Enoch Rea, Collinsville, Ill., and Warren E. Lamont, Lebanon, Kan.

Miss Klein has charged that thoroughbred horses at Arlington Park, Sportsman's Park and Hawthorne track were given apomorphine, a derivative of morphine which stimulates horses and makes them run faster.

The drug is illegal and if the Racing Board finds the trainers guilty of allowing their horses to be drugged, it can fine them, temporarily suspend their right to race or ban them from racing permanently.

Charles D. Stein, an attorney for nine of the trainers, said Monday he plans to file a court suit challenging the constitutionality of the Racing Board's hearing on the matter.

He said the board rule calling for discipline of trainers who simply allow their horses to be drugged is unconstitutional because no proof is required that the trainers helped in the actual drugging.

Unbeaten, Unanimous, Unknown

Indiana No. 1 in Final Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Unbeaten and unanimous. And almost totally unknown in the public mind except for its winning record and a dynamic young coach named Bobby Knight.

That's the way Indiana finished its regular basketball season and headed into the NCAA championships as No. 1 in the United Press International Board of Coaches final ratings of 1974-1975.

Indiana was named first by all 35 coaches participating in the final balloting and outpointed UCLA, 350-306. Louisville was a distant third with 251, followed by Kentucky with 205 and Maryland with 169.

Bobby Knight's Hoosiers raced through a 29-game season without a loss and, added to their three victories a year ago in the Commissioners Tournament, today boast a streak of 32 straight, longest in major college basketball. Yet how many people can name even two players on this well-drilled, defense-oriented squad?

The final week of regular play shook up the rest of the top 10, with John Wooden's UCLA Bruins, now intent on regaining the NCAA crown, moving into second place behind Indiana while last week's runnerup, Maryland, tumbled to fifth.

Louisville moved up from fourth to third, and Kentucky jumped from sixth to fourth.

Rounding out the top ten were Marquette, Arizona State, Alabama, North Carolina State, and North Carolina. North Carolina State, defending national champions, shunned the National Invitation after being rejected for inclusion in the NCAA tourney.

Indiana may be compared to the 1957 North Carolina team, which also went through an unbeaten season without any one individual star. The Tarheels, coached by Frank McGuire, epitomized the team concept, especially since none of their starters ever established themselves in the pro ranks.

None of this year's Indiana team is ranked among even the top 40 scorers in the nation. None is ranked among the top 10 rebounders, the top ten in field goal percentage, free throw percentage.

None of the Hoosiers is expected to be drafted on the first round of the pro drafts next month. Only Steve Green, a 6-7 senior or Scott May, a 6-7 junior, are expected to be selected in the early rounds.

As a team, the Hoosiers ranked only 12th nationally on both offense and defense.

Knight's squad is distinguished statistically in only one category—possibly the most important category from a coach's point of view—winning margin. Indiana breezed through its schedule this season with scarcely a pause, whipping opponents by an average of almost 24 points per game—tops in the nation among major teams.

Indeed, at season's end, the Hoosiers were No. 1 in one category that no one could match—most wins without a loss. All of 'em.

Louie Blasts NIT 'No Shows'

NEW YORK (UPI) — St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca ripped into "no shows" Monday for labeling the NIT a "losers' tournament."

Carnesecca, whose Redmen have an opening night National Invitational Tournament date against Lafayette Saturday night, said if critics call the NIT second-rate, then they "are calling coaches Joe Lapchick (St. John's), Nat Holman (CCNY) and Clair Bee (LIU) losers."

"And they might as well add Walt Frazier because he led Southern Illinois to the 1967 NIT championship."

Four doubleheaders kick off the 38th annual tournament this weekend. The 16-team event opens Saturday afternoon with Manhattan (13-11) playing Massachusetts (18-7). Two-time champion Providence then meets Clemson in a match between two teams with identical 17-10 records.

In the eventing, four-time titlist St. John's (19-8) plays Lafayette (22-5) and Southern Illinois (18-8) takes on Pittsburgh (17-10).

Sunday afternoon, South Carolina (18-8) faces Connecticut (18-8) and Holy Cross (19-7) takes on Princeton (18-8).

The evening doubleheader pits Memphis State (20-6) against Oral Roberts (19-7) and Oregon (18-8) against St. Peter's (15-11).

The quarterfinals are scheduled for Tuesday night, March 18 and Thursday night, March 20, with the semifinals Saturday afternoon March 22 and the final Sunday afternoon, March 23.

"I'm taking exception to that 'loser tag,'" Carnesecca stormed. "Over 13 million people have watched NIT basketball here since its inception in 1938. Do you call that a loser's competition?" Carnesecca asked. "The NIT pushed college basketball to the national level it enjoys today."

Carnesecca was particularly agitated on an assistant Rutgers coach for the remark, saying he could excuse a younger man, but not someone who has been deeply involved in the game.

As for his own Redmen, Carnesecca believes they have an excellent chance of winning the NIT after its fine play over the last five weeks of the season.

"But as you know, the NIT has a history of upsets," Frank McGuire, a former St. John's coach who has won 470 games as mentor of the Redmen, North Carolina and South Carolina, also feels his Carolina club can go all the way.

"There used to be a time when I had ironman starters and never knew who my sixth man was," McGuire said of his past triumphs. "Today, we use 12 men and all see considerable action."

Purdue won the 1974 NIT, but elected to play in the upcoming Conference Commissioners Tournament after losing out to Indiana in the Big Ten race.

Picket NIT?

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, director of Operation PUSH, says his organization will picket the National Invitation Tournament in New York next week and black players have been urged not to cross the picket lines.

Jackson said Monday night the picketing was to protest exclusion of basketball teams from black colleges in the tournament.

Jackson said the picketing at Madison Square Garden would take place unless the NIT took such action as inviting black teams or putting "some black coaches and directors on their lily white selection committee."

Jackson said PUSH is writing black players on the teams which have been invited urging them not to cross the picket lines.

The director of the civil rights activist group said black colleges had been promised berths in the NIT but only one such school—Maryland State last year—had ever been invited.

"Their argument is up to 93 per cent of the players will be black," Jackson said. "But the schools are white."

"One hundred years ago we picked cotton and the masters got the money. Now we shoot basketballs and the masters get the money."

"These small black schools need the credit and the television exposure and the players need the recognition so they can get their (professional) bonuses. The scouts will still get the Earl Monroes, but the players won't get the money."

S. African Offer Refused

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexico has turned down South Africa's offer to play their politically-damaged Davis Cup match in Johannesburg, Mexican Tennis Federation president Miguel Osuna said Monday night.

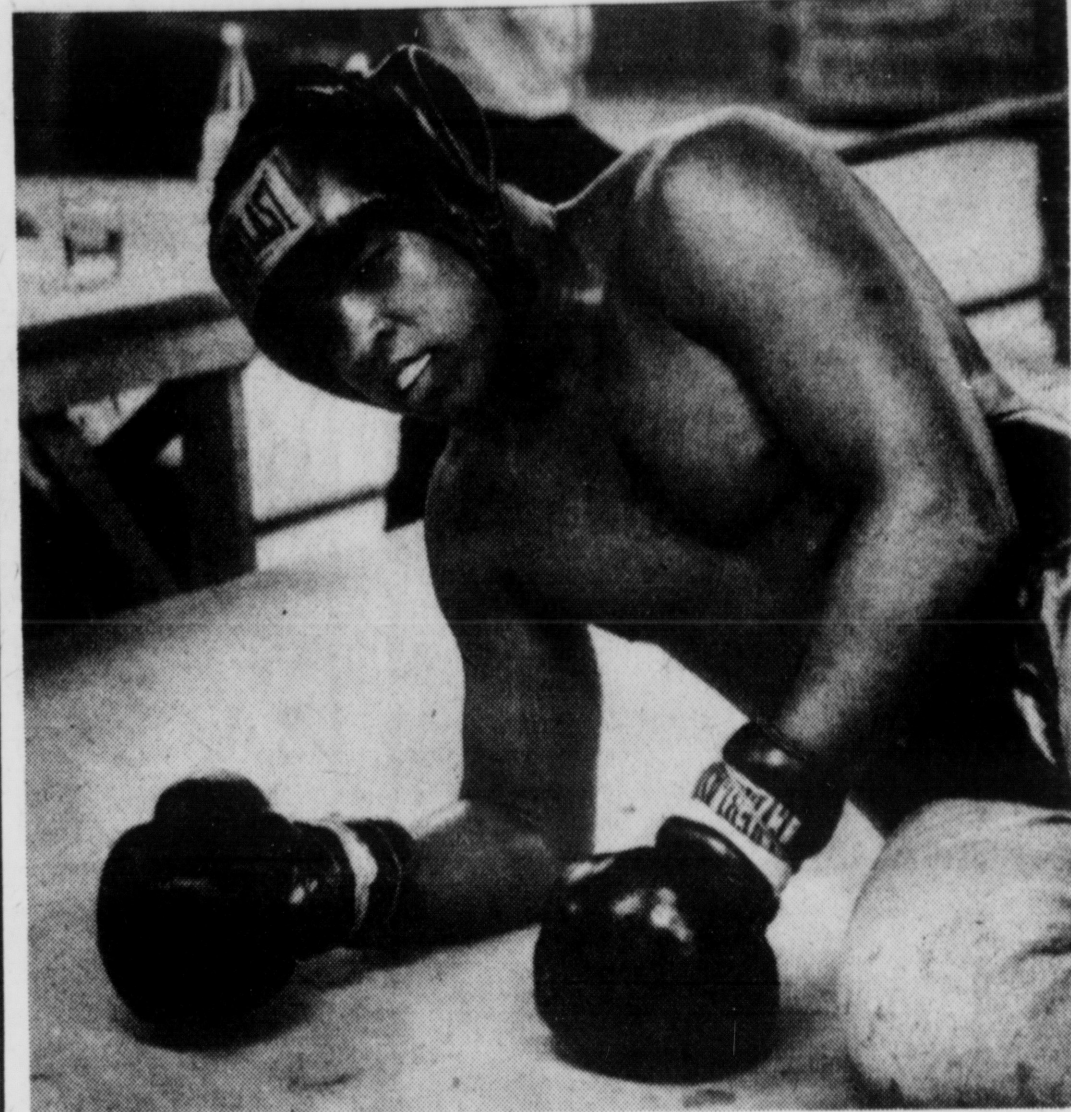

Osuna added the chances of playing the match "are less than 10 per cent now."

He said tennis development in Mexico could be put back "a number of years" as a result.

The Mexican foreign ministry last Thursday refused to allow the South African team into Mexico because of its government's racial policy. It said it was following a United Nations ruling to snub "racist governments."

Osuna said South Africa's offer to stage the match in Johannesburg was "out of the question."

Rhinebeck Cagers Eliminated

WHITE PLAINS

Rhinebeck High put itself into a deep hole in the first half Monday night, then had to climb uphill to try and pull out its Section One Class C semi-final game with Bronxville.

The climb fell just short.

The Indians, second seeded in the tournament, dropped a 59-57 decision to the downstagers in the Westchester County Center ending an excellent season on a down note.

"It was a fine game," said Rhinebeck assistant coach Jay Kosoff. "We lost to a good team. Our boys have nothing to be ashamed of. I think anytime you get to be in the top four of the section, you've done a good job."

Rhinebeck, which won the DCSL Bi-Valley title with a perfect 14-0 mark, finished the year 17-2 overall. The losses came in the first and the last games.

In Monday's contest, Bronxville led by two at the end of the first quarter, then stretched it to 14 at halftime, 33-19. "We started out in a zone and Bronxville worked the ball very slowly," said Kosoff. "That got us standing around. So we switched to a trap and they beat the trap."

When the Indians utilized the man-to-man defense in the second half the tide began to turn. Rhinebeck cut the deficit to nine going into the final period and by the time the last minute of the game approached, the difference was just two points.

But Bronxville, which scored only one basket in the fourth quarter, managed to trade points with Rhinebeck in that last minute, never even allowing the losers to tie the score.

Kosoff felt one of the keys to the Rhinebeck comeback was its improved rebounding in the second half.

"They outrebounded us 22-8 in the first half," he said. "In the second half it was just about the reverse."

Kevin Callahan led the Rhinebeck scoring with 17 points.

Bronxville will meet the winner of tonight's Tuckahoe-Pawling game in the Class C championship game.

Ron Stander Arrested

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (UPI) — Heavyweight boxer Ron Stander and a young woman were arrested Sunday by police investigating a break-in at an "adult bookstore."

Authorities said Stander, 30, and Diane L. Price, 19, both of Council Bluffs, were released on $500 bond each on a charge of breaking and entering.

Police said they noticed a broken door panel at the Goodtimes Bookstore and as they approached, two men fled out the rear door and split up.

Police said they found Stander face down behind a pile of snow. A van registered to Stander was found later, with Miss Price inside. The second man was not found.

Police said two large plastic bags containing adult movie films and sex paraphernalia were found inside the store, but all items appeared to be accounted for.

Kareem 'Kills' Kings

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — It was left for Kansas City Coach Phil Johnson to put into words what everybody in the Milwaukee Arena saw Monday night.

"Dandridge doesn't hurt you. None of them really hurt you. Except that big guy. He kills you. Actually kills you."

The "big guy," of course, is Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Milwaukee Bucks center who put on a personal display that destroyed the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 103-96 in the only pro basketball game Monday night.

With 9:28 left in the game the Bucks led 79-78.

Then Abdul-Jabbar hit nine points in a row while the Kings scored six, making the score 88-84. Abdul-Jabbar got a rebound and threw a length of the court pass to Mickey Davis for a bucket.

Then the Bucks' center stole the ball and moments later hit another jump shot. Finally Abdul-Jabbar found George Thompson for a short jumper and the Bucks had a 94-86 lead with just over four minutes left.

Kansas City came within three points a couple of times but the Bucks thwarted every effort and ended up with their first win against the Kings in seven games this year.

Although Johnson was awed by Abdul-Jabbar's performance, it also caused him to get his 30th technical foul of the year—a record that leads the league and has made him $1,500 poorer.

"I got my technical when I was yelling at the refs about the picks Kareem sets," Johnson said.

Ulster Senators Return—Will Mike Bernstein?

By STEVE KANE

STONE RIDGE Most of the first half has passed by lethargically. Ulster, down by ten already, appears to be in for a long night. A call at the far end of the court goes against a Senator big man, and with the whistle UCCC coach Mike Bernstein leaps up, rips off his jacket and slams his fist down on the scorer's table.

Bernstein has just maintained his one technical per game average. His planned rage sparks Ulster to an eight point streak, and UCCC is back in the game. The Senators win going away in the second half.

Ulster County Community College learned to be very accepting of Bernstein's indiscretions this year for those were the only crimes he committed, and more often than not they produced an Ulster victory.

It started in December with the marriage of a teamless coach to a coachless team. Bernstein, out of a job with the demise of the Hudson Valley Nets, heard of an opening at UCCC created by the departure of Jerry Moss.

"I came down and heard the scoop," said Bernstein describing his first meeting with UCCC Athletic Director Al DiBernardo. "They offered the job as part time, but I only wanted it as a full time position. The board gave its consent, then they told me the first game was that night."

It wasn't quite that bad — Ulster got a two-day reprieve and managed to open the season with a victory, the first of 17 games the Senators were to win. UCCC got clobbered in its next outing by the eventual regional champion Westchester, and Bernstein said at the time he'd be happy to get through the first half of the year with a .500 record.

Bernstein said that he took the job for three reasons, "Because I knew Chric Cummings, because I knew the talent was there, and because it was a big challenge. I was generally familiar with Ulster — I'd seen them play when I scouted (Steve) Richardson for American International a couple of years ago."

But he was a little surprised when Ulster survived the first half with an 8-2 record. "I didn't know if we had the mental and physical process. I didn't know if we had the mental and physical quickness to pick things up the way we did," he said.

Ulster played its way into the Region XV Tournament, finishing the year with a 17-6 record. It was far beyond anyone's pre-season expectations.

"Defense carried us most of the year," Bernstein said, "but I'm defense-oriented. I believe you have to depend on that. I was most disappointed in our inability to make the short jump shots. That's what you have to work for in college ball — You don't get layups against the Mercers."

Ulster made enough shots to bring the fans back to Stone Ridge. That made the coach "... tickled pink. The people were a little hesitant at first, but that was to be expected. The fans were so rabid — Ulster is the kingpin of the region in that department, that once they saw us they liked our enthusiasm. Sometimes it seemed like I had 50 assistant coaches."

It was the players themselves that gave Bernstein an enjoyable year. He called them the best group he ever coached. He admits a highlight of the season came after a game when they surprised him with a party on his 28th birthday.

"These guys didn't have a dime, yet they got their girlfriends to bake a cake and gave me a shirt and a bottle of champagne."

Bernstein helped get basketball back on its feet at Ulster yet he's not sure he'll be back. He has not been reappointed as yet, and other schools are interested in his services.

"I'll have to take a hard look at any other offers. This being in limbo worries me a little."

He'd like to use the degree he earned at Cortland to teach somewhere, but one suspects he'd accept another shot at basketball coach/instructional assistant for at least one more season. The change from an assistant's position at Massachusetts then AIC to a head coach's job was an agreeable one.

"It was much more pleasurable being your own man," he said looking back. "It was like being a father figure, and we had a kind of family philosophy. We had our problems like any family, but we got over the whole thing — the whole season — as a unit. We came out of uncertainty to be a winner."

Focusing on Library Fund Drive

Mrs. Carolyn Short, chairman of this year's Kingston Area Library fund raising drive accepts a sketch of the library from Roy Ickes, a local artist. Reproduction of the Ickes drawing are being used in the solicitations for the $20,000 fund drive. Ickes, a member of the Ulster County Art Association, specializes in oil land scapes of buildings and other structures. The library's annual fund drive runs through the month of March. Ickes rendering of the 76-year-old building will be on display at the library for the duration of the fund drive. (Freeman photo)

Senior Exemptions Hiked

SHANDAKEN
The Shandaken Town Board, after a public hearing Saturday, passed the raising of the income limit for the partial senior citizen property tax exemption.

Supervisor Raymond Dunn said the limit, which had been $5,000 per year, was raised to $6,000. He said the vote of the board was unanimous, and there was "no opposition whatsoever" to the move at the public hearing.

In other action, the board:

- Approved participation in the 701 Program, in which the planning board will undertake a planning and zoning study of the town with the state paying part of the cost. Dunn said the town-state shares were expected to be about $1,400 each.
- Appointed William Caton of Chichester town historian, replacing Edward G. West, town historian for the past 10 years, who resigned.

Dunninger Dies

Entertainer Joseph Dunninger died in his Cliffside Park, N.J. home on Monday at age 82. Known as "the Amazing Dunninger," the mentalist and magician was once an associate of Harry Houdini and performed before six presidents. (UPI)

Irishman Breakfast Scheduled by Chamber

KINGSTON
The Sixth Annual Irishman of the Year Breakfast of the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County will be held Monday, March 17, at 7:45 a.m. in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The session will be open to members, guests and the general public, but reservations must be made no later than noon Friday, by calling the Chamber office.

The morning's program will be highlighted by the naming of the "Irishman of the Year," and music by a group

Chamber Executive Vice President Len Cane says is named Plink, Plunk, Clunk, the Voice, Knuckles and D-Boom.

The breakfast will begin with green orange juice. Attending as past recipients of the Royal Order of the Blarney Stone will be Tony Pizzarelli, Lillian Salapatis, Tony Bell, Cliff Henze and Joe Cornelius.

Cane advised early reservations as the event has been growing in attendance each year.

Two Men Arrested

TOWN OF OLIVE
Close cooperation between State Police and the Town of Olive Constables resulted in the arrest Sunday of two men in connection with "numerous" burglaries of private residences and summer homes in the Town of Olive during the past month, according to a State Police report.

State Police said Robert Hall Bily, 24, of Bell Lane, West Shokan, and Edwin Norman Kendall, 24, of 43 Boston Road, Billerica, Mass., were arrested and charged with burglary in the third degree. According to State Police, they were arraigned before Olive Town Justice Alfred Higley and committed to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $3,500 bail each.

State Police said about $1,000 worth of stolen property was recovered.

Card of Thanks

I wish to express my sincerest thanks to my friends and neighbors who sent me cards, flowers and gifts during my stay at the Kingston Hospital, they were model now. Wear it in the privacy of your own home to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit. No wires lead from body to head.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 9651, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria Street, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

Your Astrograph

For Wednesday
March 12, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll awaken interest regarding your plans if you're a bit mysterious about them.

Reveal just enough to whet others' appetites.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something you're presently hoping for will be delayed through no fault of your own.

The delay is temporary and will be rectified.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't stand in another's shadow today or the credit you should receive for an achievement will be stolen by the grandstander. Speak up.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) An embarrassing situation can be avoided if you don't pretend to know about something you don't know of.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very careful with anything material belonging to another. Don't lend without the owner's consent what was entrusted to you.

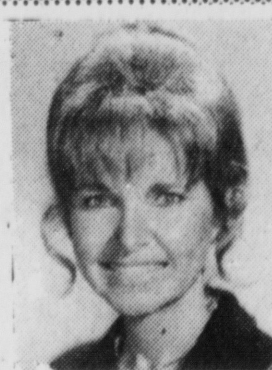

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't wait too long to wrap up a delicate situation or the control will slip from you. Someone else will be calling the shots.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could easily be talked out of a good idea by one who will plant doubts in your mind with her negative comments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be careful in financial dealings today or you'll suffer some loss that could be averted. Count your change. Get receipts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your intentions will be good but your drive will be minimal. Things you plan to do today are likely to be postponed.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS

FIRST: (Q) I've known this boy for one year. He is very nice. He has never dated a girl and I have never dated or kissed a boy. I would like for him to be the one I date and kiss first. How can I do this? — Sure in Pennsylvania.

(A) You can't do it by yourself. You have to have his cooperation. Encourage that by being in places you know he will be and being friendly when he "runs into" you. Talk to him. Smile at him. But don't show off around him. Do not be pushy, either. Do not get other people to talk to him about you. Do not talk to other people about him.

Do be sure that he has your telephone number and knows that you would like for him to call you.

ANOTHER?: (Q) I like Susan — only I think she likes another guy in our room. How can I get her to like me? My mother thinks I am too young to date because I am 13 — Desperate Lover in New York.

(A) I do not think you need to feel desperate about your situation. You ARE too young to date and Susan probably is too. But you are not too young to be friends. An even if Susan does like some other boy, it is possible for her to like you at the same time. Be friendly with her. Let her know by your actions that you like her.

Also talk freely with your mother about Susan and your feelings toward her.

(Write to Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Jean Adams cannot send personal answers.)

Claim Contract Before You Goof

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Four hearts wheels in easily against any lead but a heart. However, West did lead a heart. East held the first trick and continued the suit. South went up with the ace.

Terence Reese asks, "What should South do next?" His answer is a surprising one. He says, "He should lay down his hand and claim the contract before he can make a mistake."

Before you go any further see if you can figure out the play which must win against any combination of adverse cards.

Here it is: South cashes dummy's ace and king of spades and ruffs a spade. East has to follow, but it makes no difference. If East ruffs in any time, there will be no way for him to lead a third trump to draw dummy's last trump.

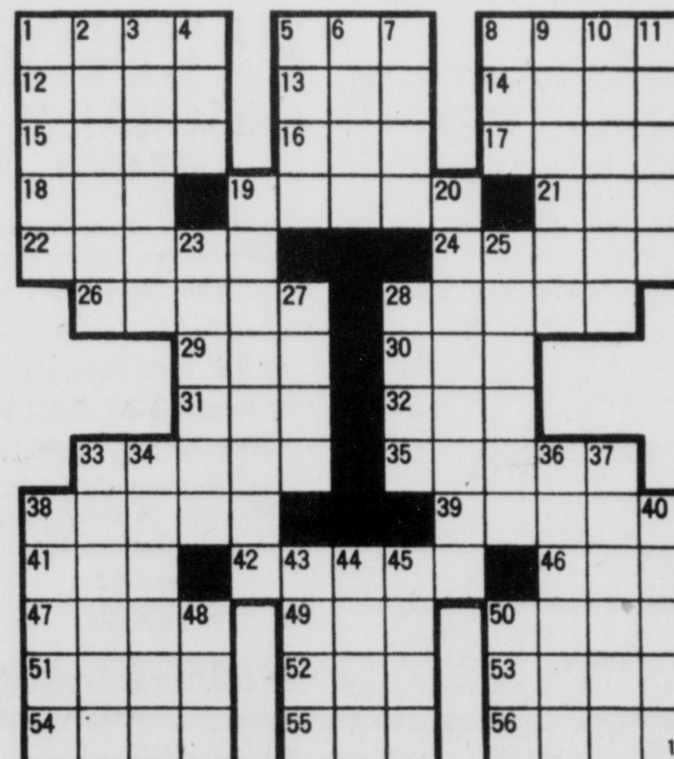

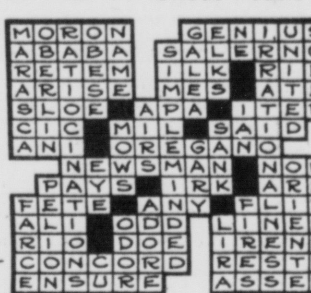

South's next play is to take his king of clubs. Then he leads a club to dummy's last spade. Now he leads a club to dummy's ace and ruffs dummy's last club. Here again East is helpless if he ruffs in on dummy's club ace or six. South scores his 10th trick and contract with the ace of diamonds.

Icebreaker Rams Free

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The U.S. Coast Guard's biggest and strongest icebreaker, the Glacier, stuck for nearly a week in Antarctic ice, "rammed her way to the open sea" today, the Coast Guard announced.

The 8,600-ton ship won its race against the swiftly approaching South Polar winter early this morning, weathering an Antarctic gale Monday with 35 knot winds and blowing snow which reduced visibility to zero.

"The Glacier has radioed that she has broken through to the open waters of the Antarctic Sound," said a spokesman for Coast Guard headquarters here, the Glacier's home port.

"She backed and rammed her way through to the open sea with the use of only one of her two props." The other propeller was broken by the ice in the Weddell Sea, described as hard as steel.

The gale that lashed the ship Monday helped free the Glacier, but hindered attempts to evacuate as many of its 211 crewmen as could be spared. Winter is clamping down fast on the South Pole, where the seasons are the reverse of those in the Northern Hemisphere, and the Glacier was in danger of remaining imprisoned in the ice until the arrival of spring, next November.

"The gale helped the Glacier because it shifted the ice a bit in its advantage, but it sure messed up the air evacuation program," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Thirty-seven crewmen and eight civilian scientists, evacuated by helicopter, already have reached Buenos Aires, Argentina, awaiting planes home to California. Another 36 evacuated crewmen were at Argentina's Marambio Naval Base on the Antarctic continent, awaiting a decision to rejoin the ship or continue their flight home.

Even as the Glacier fought its way through 12 miles of ice up to 35 feet thick, the crew was being reduced to the 90 volunteers who would have remained aboard to maintain it if the ship had to "winter in."

The big icebreakers are designed and provisioned to stand up to a winter frozen in pack ice, but none in Coast Guard history has ever been left behind for the winter.

"Gale winds of 30 to 35 knots blew around the Glacier from the south-southwest Monday," The Coast Guard said after a radio report by its commander, Capt. Richard Gillette. "There was blowing snow, and visibility dropped to zero."

But the Coast Guard had been hoping for winds from the west to help open a "lead," a crack in the ice leading to the sea. The gale helped, shortening the length of the lead from 3 miles to 1 1/2.

Meanwhile the Glacier, backing and charging the ice repeatedly with its battering ram bow, fought through two miles of ice in two days despite the loss of two propeller blades.

The Glacier ran into trouble Wednesday as it tried to come to the aid of an Argentine icebreaker, the Gen. San Martin, afflicted by engine trouble while on a supply mission to a South Polar scientific base.

What the Coast Guard called "steel-hard ice" sheared off two of the three 6-ton blades on one of the Glacier's two propellers. Argentine officials reported the Gen. San Martin made it to freedom on its own and was reported limping northward.

Rocky Mum on CIA Plots

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller has refused to discuss whether his commission will look into reports that the Central Intelligence Agency may have plotted the assassinations of foreign officials.

Rockefeller said Monday the Presidential Commission Investigating the CIA, which the vice-president heads, is restricting its investigation to domestic activities of the CIA. But he declined to say that ruled out the possibility that assassination plots organized in the United States would also be investigated.

"We are not discussing anything we are doing," Rockefeller said.

Specifically he declined to answer when asked about the possibility the CIA worked with Mafia agents in this country to plot assassination attempts.

According to some news reports, the late Robert F. Kennedy, when he was attorney general, halted a plan between the Mafia and the CIA to attempt to assassinate Fidel Castro in Cuba.

"We are lagging a little behind," Rockefeller said, adding that the commission will probably request that President Ford give it an extension of several weeks beyond the original April 1 deadline for making its report.

Delta Ready to Halt N.Y.-Florida Frills

ATLANTA (UPI) — Delta Air Lines, facing competition on lucrative New York-Florida flights, says it will ask for a new "no frills" reduced tariff rate for flights from New York to Miami and Fort Lauderdale.

The two other major carriers, National and Eastern airlines, have been given permission by the Civil Aeronautics Board to offer the reduced fare tickets, with stipulations similar to those Delta proposed.

If approved by the CAB, the no-frills fare would be the same from New York to Miami and from New York to Fort Lauderdale, $61 including tax. The fare would be in effect Monday through Thursday on day or night flights.

J.A. Cooper, Delta's senior vice president for marketing, said Monday advance reservations for no-frills service will be permitted, but seven-day advance ticketing and reservations will be required.

Energy, Economic Compromise Subjects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford summoned his chief energy and economic advisers to a meeting today to discuss a possible compromise between his own anti-recession program and proposals set forth by Rep. Al Ullman, D-Oreg., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Federal Energy Administration Frank Zarb and his aides already are negotiating with Ullman in an effort to merge key points in the alternate plans.

The President also will discuss with his aides the House-passed $21.3 billion tax cut bill. Ford asked for only $16 billion in tax cuts. But there were indications he would accept the House version if a provision repealing the oil depletion allowance, a $2.6 billion tax benefit for oil and gas companies, were eliminated.

The President planned to meet with his economic and energy advisers again Thursday in the continuing monitoring of the recession-ridden economy.

Ford also scheduled a meeting today with Defense Secretary James Schlesinger to discuss the Pentagon budget request for the 1976 fiscal year totaling more than $95 billion.

World trouble spots also were expected to be discussed, including Cambodia, where Ford feels the Lon Nol government has "50-50 reasonable chance" to survive to the beginning of the rainy season in June if Congress quickly approves his request for $222 million in extra military aid.

Ford's aides said cables from Phnom Penh are bleak and that without additional aid there is no likelihood Cambodia will survive this dry season.

In case the Cambodian situation worsens, the Pentagon has contingency plans for evacuation of Americans and is looking into how it might help third country nationals serving American agencies there.

'Recession to Bottom Out'

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William Simon says the recession will "bottom out" by the middle to latter part of this year — but the economy will still face "serious long-range threats."

Simon told the 15th annual luncheon of Girard Bank Monday he was confident the Ford administration would overcome the "problems of the moment," but emphasized the need to "awaken in time to the more serious long-range threats to our economy."

He defined these as a massive growth of government, the weakening of the nation's economic foundations and progressively higher rates of inflation.

Simon said the natural cyclical forces of the economy would bring about a softening in the recession.

"Our job in government, I believe, is to assist and strengthen those forces so that before the end of the year we can be well on the road to recovery," he said.

But, he added, "We should not deceive ourselves about the future. Inflation may be receding today, but unless we taken proper precautions it could level off on a plateau of 7-8 percent, an easy launching pad for truly staggering inflation later on."

Simon expressed concern over anticipated deficits for fiscal 1975 and 1976 climbing toward the $100 billion mark.

Another problem he cited was a trend toward what he described as a "gradual weakening of our free enterprise system."

He said brightening economics signs included a decrease in the climb of consumer prices and a fall in wholesale prices for three months in a row — the first such decline in years.

Simon also pointed to a drop in the prime lending rate from 12 per cent in July to 7.75 per cent today.

Cyprus Talks to Resume

ANKARA (UPI) — Turkish Foreign Minister Melih Esenbel announced today after meetings with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that talks between Turkish and Greek Cypriots over the future of Cyprus would be resumed "very shortly."

He called a news conference to announce the move after his third meeting with Kissinger in less than 24 hours. Kissinger's main aim was to get the talks going again.

Kissinger took a day out of his Middle East peace shuttle to fly here at the surprise invitation of the Turkish government after he had conferred Friday with Greek Foreign Minister Dimitrios Bitsios in Brussels.

This evening Kissinger is flying back to Israel to resume his shuttle between that country and Egypt in search of a second stage agreement on Israeli troop withdrawals in the Sinai desert.

Israeli leaders spent the time deliberating the next step in their negotiations with Egypt on a new troop separation agreement in the Sinai Desert.

The secretary of state planned to fly back to Jerusalem this afternoon, resuming shuttle talks aimed at negotiating Israeli troop pullbacks in exchange for Egyptian political concessions.

Kissinger's talks with Turkish leaders in Ankara followed last Friday's Cyprus discussions with Greek Foreign Minister Dimitrios Bitsios in Brussels.

The secretary conferred Monday with Prime Minister Sadi Irmak, Foreign Minister Melih Esenbel, former Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit and Gen. Semih Sancar, the armed forces chief of staff.
